Rep. Pettis killed in plane crash

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — The body of Rep. Jerry Pettis was found in the wreckage of his single-engine plane Friday shortly after it crashed on the side of a mountain, officials said.

The 58-year-old Republican from Loma Linda, a pilot for 35 years, had left Palm Springs alone Friday morning on a 30-minute flight to San Bernardino to attend a state Public Utilities Commission hearing.

His wife, waiting at Tri-

City Airport, notified authorities when Pettis failed to arrive.

The wreckage of the four-seat Beechcraft Bonanza was found at the 6,500-foot level of a 9,000-foot peak in the San Bernardino Mountains, about four miles northwest of Beaumont.

A San Bernardino County sheriff's helicopter spotted the wreckage, and a deputy was dropped at the site. A recovery team was later airlifted in.

Pettis flew a heavily traveled route over rugged terrain in which many planes have crashed through the years.

Beaumont lies about 20 miles east of San Bernardino and about 28 miles northwest of Palm Springs on a direct line between the two Southern California desert cities.

The weather was somewhat overcast, but visibility should have been good, according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

A former professor of economics at Loma Linda

University near here, Pettis, a native of Phoenix, Ariz., had been in Congress since 1966.

He is survived by his widow, Shirley, and three children.

In Washington, President Ford said he and Mrs. Ford "were deeply grieved to learn of the plane crash that took the life of our old friend, Rep. Jerry Pettis."

Pettis' 33rd Congressional District was one of the nation's largest, covering most of San Bernardino and Riverside counties. He frequently flew his own plane around the area.

Third-ranking Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, he called himself a moderate Republican. He was re-elected by wide margins four times.

A flight instructor during World War II, Pettis was interested in aviation most of his life. As a pilot for United Airlines, he helped organize the nation's first pilot's union and served as its first president. He later was a special assistant to the president of United Airlines.

Pettis was raised in Arizona and worked in the agricultural fields as a youth. He came to California as a teen-ager and earned degrees from Pacific Union College in Angwin, Denver University and USC.

In the late 1930s he was known as "the flying minister." A Seventh Day Adventist minister, he tended his scattered congregation in western Arizona and southeastern California by plane.

He was a professor at Loma Linda University for 12 years and vice president for development there for four. He founded Audio Digest Foundation, a pioneer in the use of magnetic tape digests for physicians, and later founded a public relations firm. And he had extensive agricultural holdings at one time.

Smog board recalls 21,700 Chryslers

By JOHN BALZAR

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Brown's newly appointed Air Resources Board Friday ordered the recall and repair of 21,700 Chrysler Corp. new cars and pickups because of "massive" smog violations.

The board said it was the largest such recall ever initiated by the state.

About 10,500 of the vehicles already have been sold, and account for about 80 per cent of the Plymouths, Dodges, Chryslers and Imperials purchased in California this year, the board said.

The remainder of the defective vehicles are on dealer showroom floors.

"The action was taken only because the pollutants from Chrysler cars represent massive and unprecedented violations of our antismog laws," said board chairman Tom Quinn, the governor's cabinet-level adviser on environmental issues.

"The Air Resources Board staff has never seen such serious violations," Quinn said.

Included in the recall and repair order are 21,000 cars, Plymouth Valiants, Dodge Darts, Plymouth Gran Fury's, Dodge Coronets, Chrysler Cordobas, Dodge Chargers, Dodge Monacos, Imperials, and Chryslers.

About 10,000 of the cars are already in the hands of motorists, the board estimated. The remaining 11,000 cars in showrooms must be repaired before they are sold.

Chrysler Corp. dealers will be told to notify customers of the recall, and owners will be asked to return their automobiles to the dealers for repair.

About 700 pickups were covered under the order, 500 of which have been sold.

Quinn said Chrysler had not devised an effective method for repairing the pickups, and this will require a temporary halt in their sales. Owners of the defective trucks will be notified of the recall when a repair method is determined.

Quinn said the auto manufacturer had voluntarily developed its own limited recall campaign, but the board "decided to significantly expand the recall and halt sale of the trucks."

He praised Chrysler for fully cooperating and "doing everything possible."

But report gloomy on recession Inflation slowing, data hints

Associated Press

A government report that wholesale prices declined in January for the second straight month provided fresh evidence Friday that the rate of inflation may be slowing. But there also were signs that the recession may be getting worse.

On the bright side: the drop in wholesale prices; an announcement that food prices may not rise as fast as expected in the first half of the year; a lower prime rate to encourage spending by businesses.

On the gloomy side: a report by the Association of American Railroads that more than 32,000 rail workers were laid off in December and January; an announcement by the General Electric Co. that its audio electronics plant in Decatur, Ill., will shut down by midyear; and a large balance of payments deficit for 1974.

The Labor Department said the wholesale price index dropped three-tenths of 1 per cent in January, following a half-a-per-cent drop in December. The biggest decline came in the price of farm products which dropped 2.2 per cent last month.

The wholesale declines usually foreshadow later decreases in the consumer price index although not all of the savings are passed on to consumers.

The Agriculture Department's Outlook and Situation Board said retail prices of food may go up 2 to 3 per cent in the first quarter of this year, followed by an increase of about 3 per cent in the second quarter. What happens after that, the board said, depends on the size of various crops and general economic conditions.

Last December, the board predicted food prices would go up 3 or 4 per cent in each of the first two quarters of 1975. In 1974, food prices rose an average of 14.5 per cent from 1973 levels.

The signs of recession came in reports about layoffs and transportation shipments.

The rail association said the layoffs were prompted partly by declines in freight shipments. It said freight-car loadings in the first five weeks of 1975 were 11.8 per cent lower than in the same period of 1974.

The American Trucking Association said freight traffic carried by its members also has dropped. The group said freight traffic was down 22.5 per cent in the first week of February.

General Electric said the plant that is being closed manufactures portable phonographs and stereo music systems.

L.B. teed off over grass killers

Somebody has it in for the lush green golf grass at Recreation Park, city officials concluded Friday.

For the second time in a month vandals dumped weed killer on the fairway and surrounding greens, turning a third of the nine-hole course into dead brown tundra.

And that's cause for battle, City Manager John Mansell decreed.

To the defense of grass he rallied, proclaiming "Such deliberate disregard for public property will hereafter be handled as a felony...No more treating it as a misdemeanor."

Intensified police surveillance—a sort of Green Patrol—will be instigated immediately, he said, and anyone caught will face felony prosecution.

Golf Superintendent Dick McAllister, equally incensed, estimated it costs $15,000 to develop a golf green and at the rate of attack, the city was in for a $45,000 expenditure in the wake of the most recent assault.

"This is no child's game," Mansell added. "It is a set pattern to interfere with the recreation and enjoyment of people who use the city facilities, a deliberate disregard for public property."

Its not an isolated problem at Recreation, he added. Other types of vandalism have increased at El Dorado Park and the Nature Center recently. They, too, will be under increased surveillance, including helicopter patrols.

First in UC's history Regents to include student

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California regents voted Friday to add a student to their number for the first time in the school's 107-year history.

Prompted by Gov. Brown, student representatives and a statewide vote on Prop. 4 last November, the regents voted 15-5 to seat a student in July for a one-year term, with full voting privileges.

The 23 regents, mostly business and professional persons, govern the nine-campus system. Sixteen are appointed by the governor, but Brown will have no vacancies to fill until next year.

"A student will offer some horse sense to the regents, which they've needed for some time, increase the energy level, and possibly raise their consciousness," Brown said after the vote.

Student committees will pick nine candidates, and the student presidents' council will narrow the list to three before the regents make the final selection, probably in May.

The regents also agreed, at the urging of Brown and the students, to let the head of the student presidents' council attend the closed-door selection meeting.

A few years ago large numbers of students regularly picketed the monthly regents' meetings. Any proposal to add a student regent would have met a quick death.

But regents' chairman William French Smith, a close associate of former Gov. Ronald Reagan, conceded after voting in the minority Friday:

"A large number of regents have the same concerns I expressed, but most thought this was an idea whose time had come."

The chairman told reporters a regents' committee hoped to nominate a successor to retiring UC President Charles Hitch by next month.

Responding to reported criticism by an unnamed regent that two of the final candidates are said to be a university official, UCLA provost David Saxon, and an ex-UC official, University of Utah President David Gardner, Smith said:

"It has been a national search with no exclusion of those inside the university."

The regents' meeting was picketed peacefully by about 30 Mexican-American students.

Oil shutoff 'like nuclear war'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A total shutoff of Middle Eastern oil "would be something very close to nuclear warfare," Asst. Secretary of State Thomas O. Enders told a Senate panel Friday.

Enders did not elaborate, and he did not list nuclear war as the solution should the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries impose an embargo far tighter than was used in 1973 and 1974.

Asked by Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., what would happen in the case of a total embargo, Enders replied: "A 100-per-cent shutoff would be something very close to nuclear warfare. That would be as big a threat as could come to the industrialized nations."

Enders did not indicate whether he mentioned warfare as a solution to an embargo or as an example of the devastating effects of a shutoff. Enders' statement was reminiscent of one earlier this year by his boss, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In an interview with Business Week magazine,

Kissinger said armed intervention would be a possibility if an oil embargo threatened to strangle the industrialized nations.

Kissinger emphasized he was discussing only a hypothetical case. And he mentioned armed intervention, not nuclear warfare.

Enders testified before the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations to explain a proposed program of organizing consumer nations to oppose the oil cartel.

Enders' remarks were based on the possibility of a total embargo of Middle Eastern oil. The 1973-74 embargo resulted in a 15-per-cent reduction of Middle Eastern oil flowing into the United States, Japan and Western Europe.

Included in the consumer-nation plan to prevent or retaliate against future embargoes are: sharing of oil among the consuming nations; agreement to set up reserves equal to 90 days' imports; and a $25-billion program to aid national economies threatened by high oil prices.

State welfare rolls hit 9-month peak

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's welfare rolls bulged in December to the highest level in nine months, as the number of people on public assistance climbed for the fourth consecutive month.

The Department of Benefits Payments said in a statement that the increase should be blamed on increasing unemployment and the worsening economic picture.

A total of 1,361,902 Californians received Aid to Families with Dependent children last month, up from 1,348,000 in November.

The increase was the largest since January 1974, when the rolls peaked at 1,365,000.

'Towering Inferno' hits N.Y. skyscraper

NEW YORK (AP) — An intense fire raged out of control for three hours in six floors of the 110-story World Trade Center in a setting reminiscent of the disaster film, "The Towering Inferno."

Sixteen firemen were treated for smoke inhalation, but there were no serious injuries. Lack of a sprinkler system was blamed for the spread of flames in the twin-towered building, the world's second tallest skyscraper.

Except for a night maintenance crew, the Trade Center in Lower Manhattan was deserted when the fire broke out about midnight Thursday on the 11th floor of the North Tower. It was not brought under control until about 3 a.m.

About 50 custodial employees were evacuated safely. However, Fire Commissioner John O'Hagan said if the fire had broken out during business hours, it was conceivable that building tenants "could have been isolated or trapped."

"Had that fire erupted during the working day, we could have had another Triangle Shirtwaist disaster," said two Democratic city councilmen, Howard Golden and Stephen Kaufman in a joint statement. They called for enforced installation of sprinkler systems in all high-rise buildings. There is currently no such requirement.

The Triangle Shirtwaist fire destroyed a lower Manhattan sweatshop in 1911.

The Trade Center fire began in a storage area on the 11th floor. Its cause has not yet been determined. Through electrical and communications wiring ducts, it spread downward to the ninth floor and upward to the 14th.

"It was like fighting a blow torch," said Fire Capt. Harold Kull.

Fireman John Verstate said that on one side of the 11th floor "all the windows were blown out. On the other side, closest to the source of the fire, the heat was so intense that all the telephones and plastic fixtures were melted."

The Trade Center's deputy director, Mal Levy, said 12 offices were damaged, including the B.F. Goodrich Co., where the fire originated.

Jury weighs 'abortion-slaying'

Combined News Services

BOSTON — The jury in the abortion-manslaughter trial of Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin completed its first day of deliberation Friday without reaching a verdict. The defense was confident of a quick acquittal, but after 4½ hours of deliberation, the jurors halted for dinner at a waterfront restaurant before retiring for the day. The nine-man, three-woman jury which heard the six-week trial began considering dozens of exhibits and testimony of 14 prosecution and 16 defense witnesses after receiving final instructions from Judge James McGuire. McGuire told the jury a manslaughter ruling required the death of a person and that a person existed only "after birth," which he defined as live emergence from the womb. The prosecution contended the crime took place within the uterus during the elective abortion of a woman six months pregnant.

Ohio bank fails

CLEVELAND, Ohio — The Northern Ohio Bank, a small downtown financial institution which listed assets of more than $115 million last December, went into receivership Friday night after a four-week examination of its books and financial status. Officers would not comment on the reason the bank, which catered to many small businessmen here, was forced to close its doors, but directors apparently acted voluntarily to try to preserve its assets. Customers were assured that they would not lose any money under the federal coverage, recently increased to $40,000 per account. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has been appointed to act as receiver of the bank's assets.

Makarios vows partition fight

NICOSIA — President Archbishop Makarios told thousands of demonstrating Greek Cypriots Friday his government will never accept a separate autonomous Turkish Cypriot state. "We shall resist, we shall struggle, we shall sacrifice ourselves if necessary, but we shall not yield. We will on no account recognize facts accomplished," Makarios said of Thursday's proclamation of a Turkish Cypriot state in northern Cyprus. He spoke after his cabinet, backed by Greece, decided to bring the new situation before the United Nations Security Council in New York. Tension in Nicosia has been building up since the Turkish Cypriot proclamation of a new state on the northern 40 per cent of the island which has been occupied by 35,000 Turkish troops since last July's invasion. Greek Cypriot newspapers said the Greek Cypriot National Guard and Turkish forces have both been placed on alert and U.N. peacekeeping troops were taking extra precautions.

Stiffer oil tax sought

OSLO, Norway — The Norwegian government proposed on Friday an additional 25 per cent tax on oil company profits to keep pace with last year's quadrupled oil prices. The proposal is subject to approval by parliament, which is expected to debate the measure before the end of the spring session. Current Norwegian tax on regular corporate income is 50 per cent.

Deficit trimmed

LONDON — Britain's foreign trade was in the red last month by $626.4 million, the lowest monthly deficit since September 1973, the government announced Friday. But the country's rate of inflation jumped nearly one per cent in January to a record level of 19.9 per cent for the latest 12 months. The Department of Trade said Britain's non-oil business overseas was in surplus for the first time in more than a year — by $122.4 million — and helped offset the deficit in oil trade, which amounted to $748.8 million.

Credit data penalty

NEW YORK — W.T. Grant, the nationwide retail store chain, agreed Friday to pay the government a $150,000 penalty for failing to inform credit purchasers of the cost in dollars and cents of its carrying charges. The civil complaint filed by the Federal Trade Commission earlier Friday alleged that from late April to early June last year certain W.T. Grant stores issued consumer credit contracts without disclosing the finance charges. Such disclosure in dollars and cents as well as in interest rate is required by the Truth-In-Lending Act. The purpose of the law is to provide the consumer with cost-of-credit information to allow comparison with other credit terms and to avoid the uninformed use of credit.

No reprieve for birds

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's decision: Bye, bye blackbird. Burger rejected without comment Friday a request by the Society for Animal Rights that he grant a temporary reprieve to millions of blackbirds slated for destruction by the Army. The society asked the chief justice to set aside an order by the U.S. Court of Appeals permitting the kills, pending a decision on its suit in U.S. District Court to halt the operation, permanently. The Army plans to carry out the program at Ft. Campbell and Paducah in Kentucky and the Milan Army Ammunition plant in Robertson and Giles counties in Tennessee. They say the birds, mainly grackles, interfere with airplanes at Ft. Campbell and may cause histoplasmosis, an occasionally fatal lung disease.

Wave of terrorism

BUENOS AIRES — A wave of terrorist activity swept Argentina Friday, leaving a congressman, a retired army sergeant, and two leftist factory workers dead in its wake. Gunmen firing a machine gun from a passing car mortally wounded Hipolito Acuna as he was driving near his home in Santa Fe, 300 miles northwest of here. Acuna, a member of a right-wing group, was the second congressman killed in the last six months. Leftist legislator Rodolfo Ortega Pena was shot to death by a right-wing group last July. A retired army sergeant was gunned down in La Plata, 30 miles south of here. Police said he apparently resisted a kidnap attempt but was shot in his car as he tried to escape a roadblock. The bodies of two factory workers were found with hands tied behind their backs and riddled with bullets in a suburban Buenos Aires parking lot. The two had been kidnapped by groups purporting to be police officers. According to union sources, both had been "sentenced to death" earlier by the so-called "Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance," a right-wing death squad.

Rebels free prisoners

ASMARA, Ethiopia — Secessionist guerrillas freed more than 1,000 rebel prisoners in two bloodless jailbreaks in Eritrea province, reliable sources reported Friday. They said no shots were fired in the mass escapes, with some guards defecting from the government and helping the captives flee. This provincial capital of 200,000 residents remained quiet, but braced for renewed fighting in the two-week-old battle between government troops and rebel forces. Rebel leaflets warned civilians to stay indoors. It is estimated that at least 4,000 government soldiers, rebels and civilians have been killed, wounded or are missing since the rebels began their drive to seize Asmara two weeks ago. All land routes have been cut into the city.

P.G. Wodehouse, creator of Jeeves, dies

Combined News Services

P.G. Wodehouse, a prolific author knighted by the Queen of England this year for his contribution to literature, died Friday night in Southampton (L.I.) Hospital of an apparent heart attack. He was 93.

Wodehouse was a master of inspired insanity whose unflappable gentleman Jeeves provided laughs to readers around the world for 40 years.

Wodehouse's novels, which he described as "musical comedies without the music," usually pictured old British gentry and their eccentric relatives practicing ritualized chivalry no matter what happened.

The most famous of Wodehouse's befuddled aristocrats was Bertie Wooster, who was rescued at every turn by his butler Jeeves. The Jeeves series included Thank You, Jeeves, Brinkley Manor, The Return of Jeeves, Right You Are, Jeeves, Jeeves In The Offing, and Stiff Upper Lip, Jeeves.

Pelham Grenville Wodehouse also wrote more than 300 short stories, was a columnist for the London Globe, a drama critic, musical lyricist and author or collaborated on several successful plays and musical comedies.

His style was described as elaborate, full of verbal ingenuity, mock pomposity and unexpected slang.

"People talk about character development," he once said. "I wouldn't trust my characters an inch."

He rewrote each of his books at least twice and said he worked extra hard on the openings, such as the first paragraph of The Butler Did It:

P.G. WODEHOUSE Depicted Aristocracy

"In the pre-October days of the year 1929 you seldom met anyone in New York who was not a millionaire. He might be a little short of the mark when you ran into him on Monday morning, but by Friday afternoon he would have got the stuff all right and be looking around for more."

His other books included Love Among Chickens, Joy in the Morning, Leave It to Psmith, Nothing Serious, Cocktail Time, Angel Cake, French Leave, and The Girl in Blue.

Describing himself, he once wrote: "Let's face it, I am a pretty insignificant sort of blister, not at all the type that leaves footprints on the sands of time, as the fellow said. Ask the first 10 men you meet: 'Have you ever heard of P.G. Wodehouse?' Nine of them will answer 'no.' The tenth, being hard of hearing, will say, 'Down the passage, first door on the right.'"

Law abider

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who began his first administration in 1963 with the vow "segregation forever," does not describe himself now as an integrationist but as "an abider by the law."

Wallace, interviewed in New York by four black journalists on public TV's "Black Perspective on the News" broadcast Friday, said he defended segregation in 1963 because it was state law at that time.

"I was raised under that system like I was raised to believe in the Bible," Wallace said, referring to segregated Southern schools.

Despite his support of the segregated school system, he said, "I have never in my life made a statement that I was against people because of the way God made them."

Asked if he now considers himself an integrationist, he said: "I would call myself an abider by the law. I don't think it makes much difference... segregation by law is gone."

Huh?

New York Mayor Abraham Beame Friday signed a law renaming East Buchanan Street as West Buchanan Street and West Buchanan Street as East Buchanan Street.

The mayor said the switch in names was required to correct an inadvertent typographical reversal when the Staten Island streets were originally named in 1972.

"In order to provide proper designation of East Buchanan Street and West Buchanan Street, I will sign this bill," the mayor explained.

Hypothetical

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Friday in Grand Island, Neb., that a possible third-party ticket with himself as the presidential nominee and Alabama Gov. George Wallace as a vice presidential selection was at this point "a hypothetical discussion."

"I'm a Republican and at this point he is a Democrat," Reagan said. "It's hard to see how the philosophical differences could be resolved."

Reagan commented at a news conference before speaking at a Grand Island Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Mickey Rooney's fourth wife has sued the actor in Los Angeles Superior Court for $14,350 in back alimony.

Elaine Mahnen Rooney filed suit Thursday alleging that Rooney had stopped paying her $500 monthly alimony in 1969.

Under terms of their 1961 divorce he was to continue payments for 10 years.

Unveiling

President Ford, a 33rd degree Mason, will go to the George Washington Masonic National Memorial in Alexandria, Va., on Monday to take part in the unveiling of a medallion in his honor, Press Secretary Ron Nessen announced Friday in Washington.

The grand masters of the Masonic Order have established commemorative medallions at the memorial for each of the 14 presidents who have been Masons.

Forfeiting

Princess Christina of the Netherlands, 27, will forfeit her right of succession to the Dutch throne to marry Jorge Guillermo, 29, a Cuban-born teacher who runs a school for underprivileged children in New York's Harlem.

Princess Christina, who is visually handicapped, is the youngest of Queen Juliana's four daughters and will be the last to marry. She is ninth in line of succession to the throne.

Ms. Admiral

Navy Capt. Maxine Conder will become the Navy's second woman admiral.

Her name appeared Friday in Washington on a list of 33 captains chosen for promotion to flag rank.

A native of Bingham Canyon, Utah, Capt. Conder is expected to succeed Rear Adm. Alene B. Duerk next summer as director of the Navy Nurse Corps. Capt. Conder, 48, has served more than 23 years in the Navy.

The Army has two lady generals. The Air Force also has two.

Motorists mind CHP escorts

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — An experimental California Highway Patrol plan to herd freeway traffic at 55 miles an hour was working smoothly on outbound routes to Las Vegas Friday, a CHP spokesman said.

A spot check in late afternoon showed no one vying for a citation by passing one of the CHP patrol cars guiding traffic waves along the highways.

The escort of all cars was initiated by the CHP zone here for a 200-mile stretch between Los Angeles and the Nevada border because other methods to get drivers to slow down have failed.

Standard refund

I have heard that persons who used Standard Oil's F-310 gasoline after it was introduced in 1970 can get refunds, and I'd like to know how I can file for my money. A.H., Long Beach.

A LITTLE LEARY...

There currently are no refunds available to F-310 users. A class action suit has been filed against Standard Oil on behalf of Southern Californians who held Standard Oil credit cards and bought its gasoline with the F-310 additive between Jan. 1, 1970, and April 20, 1970, but the suit is just in the preliminary stages and there is some question about whether or not it will be continued. The suit claims that consumers were fraudulently lured into paying 5 cents more per gallon for h-310 gasoline that did little or nothing to clear the air. The Federal Trade Commission ruled in December that Standard Oil had engaged in false advertising, by claiming that F-310 produced no air pollution. A Superior Court judge recently ruled that before the class action suit can proceed, the plaintiff, Sandra Lee Cartt, a Los Angeles school teacher, must individually notify the 700,000 credit card holders potentially affected by the suit. Her attorney, Roger Diamond, who also serves as counsel for the People's Lobby organization, has told reporters that since his client cannot afford to pay the postage costs of notifying all the credit card holders, the suit may have to be dropped unless a less expensive means of notification can be worked out. The judge's ruling could set for California the same strict standards on state class actions suits that the U.S. Supreme Court imposed on federal mass suits in May. The federal ruling held that the named plaintiffs must notify all potential class members who can be identified and incur the expenses for this process.

Pension cut

I'm a 77-year-old woman and I recently was informed that my monthly widow's pension from the Veterans Administration has been reduced from $57 to $43 because of an increase in my Social Security benefits, but that raise won't take effect until July. Why is the VA reducing my pension now when I won't get the Social Security increase until July? G.O., Long Beach.

The reduction in your VA pension is due to the 12 per cent increase in your Social Security benefits last year, not the raise that will take effect in July. By federal law, the amount of a VA widow's pension is based on a person's income. Consequently, an increase in your Social Security payments places you in a higher income level and results in a lower pension for the following year - about 24 per cent less in your case. The reduction would have been even greater, but the federal government in December approved a 12 per cent increase in the 1975 VA widow's benefits to make up some of the pension cutbacks. The government also increased the annual income limitation for a widow with no dependents from $2,600 to $3,000 because last year's Social Security increase would have caused many widows to lose their VA pensions entirely. This year's Social Security increase will not further reduce your VA pension in 1975.

Rosierucians

I am interested in joining the Rosierucians but would like to have more information about them before committing myself. Could Action Line please find out what the Rosierucians espouse? D.J., Long Beach.

The Rosierucian Order is a worldwide fraternal organization based on the philosophy that a person's well-being is best achieved by "attuning the self to a higher consciousness," according to Raymond Morgan, Rosierucian promotion director. It expounds a system of metaphysical and physical philosophy in which the member is taught the significance of the cosmic and natural laws which are found manifest in the universe around him and in himself. The word "Rosierucian" is the anglicized form of the original Latin name of the order—Rosae Crucias, which means of the rosy cross. A cross and a red rose are the symbols for order. Although the order bases its ethics on Christianity, it claims it is not a religious sect and is nonsectarian in every respect. Traditionally, the Rosierucian Order claims to trace its origin to the mystery schools of learning established during the reign of Thutmose III in Egypt about 1500 B.C. Today the Rosierucians have lodges all over the world, including the Supreme Grand Lodge in San Jose. For more information write Rosierucian Order, 1342 Naglee Ave., San Jose, Calif. 95191.

Matter of interest

I have been told that banks in Indonesia are accepting deposits of dollars from Americans working over there on which they will pay a 35 per cent yearly interest rate. Is this true or not? Can Americans not living in Indonesia deposit money there? Will a person having money on deposit in an Indonesian bank have any trouble getting his money out if he wants to leave the country? Will he be paid off in dollars or Indonesian rupiahs? If rupiahs, would there be a penalty to convert them to dollars? T.H., Long Beach.

Indonesian banks have never paid a 35 per cent interest rate on deposits and currently are paying the prevailing rate of between 7 and 8 per cent, according to Rehso Paryoon, representative for the Bank of Indonesia. He said it is the policy of the Indonesian government not to permit an out-of-country person to deposit dollars in an Indonesian bank because inflation would increase if it did. There is no problem in withdrawing money from an Indonesian bank by a person wanting to leave the country. He can have his money immediately converted in American dollars or Indonesian rupiahs. There is no penalty charge for converting rupiahs to dollars, which are bought and sold at the prevailing market rate of 415 rupiahs for $1.

Douglas, UAW talks continue

Contract talks aimed at reaching a negotiated settlement between McDonnell Douglas Corp. and the United Auto and Aerospace Workers Union continued into the night Friday.

After three and a half days of heavy bargaining, it was thought that the company would present the union with a new or modified wage proposal. But late Friday the two bargaining teams were still meeting at the Edgewater Hyatt House here, and the company still hadn't made its hoped-for wage offer.

A member of the union negotiating team, asked whether the company had come up with anything, said simply, "Not yet."

ONE UAW source said he thought the two sides would probably meet well into the night and pick up again some time today.

It remained a question mark what the union would do if the corporation didn't come up with a proposal before the weekend was over.

The union's leadership, after a strategy meeting Monday, had issued a veiled ultimatum to the company, saying, in effect, give us a new or revised wage offer or face the possibility of a walk-out by the UAW's 12,500 members at the company's plants in Long Beach, Tulsa and Arkansas.

UAW leaders have been shying away from a strike, but their apparent ultimatum suggested that the union was reaching the end of its tether. Unless a last-ditch bargaining effort proved fruitful, the union indicated, it would consider joining the International Association of Machinists in the latter's strike against the company.

The IAM struck the corporation in a move that proved to be an embarrassment to aerospace workers, whose members have been obliged to cross the machinists' picket lines at the Long Beach plant.

THE IAM bargains for about 175 flight test personnel in Long Beach, and the union posted pickets at all of the plant's gates at a minute past midnight Sunday — when a total of 19,000 machinists struck the company in St. Louis, Torrance, Huntington Beach, Palmdale and Santa Monica, not to mention Cape Kennedy and Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Beyond that, it has forced the national space agency to put a moratorium on all Delta rocket operations at Cape Kennedy. The space agency also confirmed an earlier statement by a McDonnell Douglas spokesman at Huntington Beach — where the booster rocket is made — that the picketing at Cape Kennedy would force a day-to-day postponement of the launching of a Canadian communications satellite. The Telesat satellite had been scheduled to go up March 6, but now the space agency has placed an "indefinite suspension" on the launch.

THE Canadians are expected to call the satellite Anik III once it's in orbit. In any case, the satellite's Delta launch rocket is still in its hangar at the space center, and officials said it would remain in storage until the strike was settled.

Once the strike has ended, officials said, it would take about four-and-a-half weeks to prepare the rocket and the satellite for launching.

Brezhnev rips Kissinger trip

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, in his first public speech since dropping out of sight nearly two months ago, attacked Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Middle East peacemaking efforts Friday but said the Kremlin still was committed to detente with the West.

In probably the most forceful expression of Soviet thinking since Kissinger began his Middle East shuttle diplomacy more than a year ago, the Communist Party chief called for a quick resumption of peace talks in Geneva.

The Soviets have been pushing for a resumption of the talks where they would have a more visible role in the peacemaking process and tend to eclipse Kissinger's efforts. The United States is opposed to resuming the talks on grounds they will degenerate into wrangling over seating the Palestine Liberation Organization, which Israel does not recognize.

Brezhnev's remarks were in a lengthy luncheon toast to visiting British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and coincided with the first official explanation of the 68-year-old Brezhnev's 51-day absence, which ended Thursday when he met Wilson in the Kremlin.

Leonid Zamyatin, head of the official Soviet news agency, Tass, told a questioner at a news conference: "Comrade Brezhnev did have a cold. You know that there was an epidemic of gripe in Moscow and that was the illness for which Leonid Ilyich was being treated. And this is all I can say officially."

Brezhnev disappeared from view Dec. 24, prompting a flood of rumors that he was seriously ill or that he was in political trouble because of trade problems with the U.S., which were considered a setback for his detente policies. But his appearance Thursday and the toast Friday showed Brezhnev was still in good health and in full command of the Kremlin hierarchy.

Nixon 'distrusted' U.S. interpreters

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Nitze charged Friday that former President Richard Nixon's refusal to permit the use of American interpreters hampered U.S. negotiators at the first SALT talks.

He said, in a TV interview on ABC's "AM America," that Nixon took this stand because he had an obsession with secrecy—even secrecy within his own government.

"He wasn't confident that all those working in the Executive Branch were totally loyal and what he considered secure from his standpoint. He was afraid that people not really wholly within his confidence might talk to others within the U.S. Executive Branch," Nitze said.

NITZE said he was staggered that Nixon preferred the use of Russian interpreters because of lack of faith in the discretion of American interpreters. "It seemed to me totally unwise," he said.

When asked whether this situation complicated the task of the U.S. negotiating team at the initial SALT conference, he replied: "Well, the result was that we who were negotiating at the lower levels were never quite sure what had transpired at the higher level."

Nitze stressed that the U.S. must demonstrate professional skill in its dealings with the Soviet Union because the Russians respect confidence in their opponents. He added that Moscow fully understands the arts of negotiating and uses highly sophisticated tactics. He said we have to match them along these lines or we will suffer disadvantages.

IN RESPONSE to a query about his opinion of Soviet-American detente, Nitze replied that a portion of detente is useful and viable and a portion is illusion.

"I think those people who feel that detente means that there isn't really a deep adversary relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union are wrong. But there are certain common interests between the USSR and the United States. There are certain aspects of detente which are important for us to maintain and to continue," he said.

Air defense system OK'd by studies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger told Congress Friday that studies "fully support a decision to proceed" with production of a controversial $3.8 billion airborne warning and control system.

Schlesinger wrote the Senate and House certifying that the AWACS "is cost effective and meets the mission needs and requirements of the Department of Defense."

THIS certification was required by Congress before the Pentagon could obligate funds to start buying the system, which would control the air defense of Western Europe.

It contemplates for the U.S. Air Force an eventual 31 sophisticated airborne command post planes packed with radar, communications equipment and computers from which generals would run an air battle against attacking planes.

At $111 million each, the planes are described as the most costly in history.

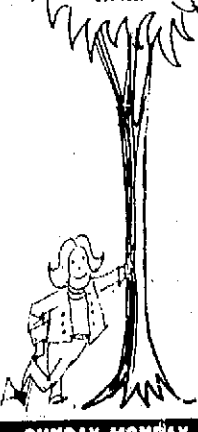

The General Accounting Office and congressional critics have suggested the system is vulnerable to jamming by Soviet electronic countermeasures equipment.

Mideast peace tour 'satisfying' to Kissinger

AQABA, Jordan (AP)—Henry Kissinger completed his "exploratory" peace mission to Israel and Egypt Friday with prospects for a Sinai settlement still in doubt.

But he told newsmen he was "very satisfied" with the talks that "enable me to come back in a few weeks for more concrete negotiations."

The American secretary of state spoke to reporters as he left Israel for this Red Sea resort and conferences with Jordan's King Hussein.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said in Jerusalem that he hoped Kissinger's latest Mideast tour "will be recognized as an important opening for new political initiatives."

Before Kissinger left Jerusalem a bomb exploded in a field less than a mile from his hotel, killing two persons. The blast was near the site of the old Mandelbaum Gate, dismantled when Israel captured East Jerusalem from Jordan in 1967.

A communique issued later in Beirut, Lebanon, by Palestinian guerrillas claimed responsibility for the explosion but made no reference to Kissinger.

It said guerrillas, retaliating for arrests of Arabs in Jerusalem, planted bombs near the former gate location and destroyed a gasoline station.

The Kremlin criticized Kissinger's attempts to achieve a step-by-step peace and called again for an immediate resumption of the Geneva negotiations, where they would have direct participation.

"Partial bilateral measures, as is known, have already been implemented in the Middle East," Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev said in Moscow. "Have they eased the tension in the area? Unfortunately not. Have they offered tranquility to peoples of the Middle East? No, they have not."

A senior Israeli official told newsmen in Jerusalem that Kissinger did not convey concrete Egyptian proposals to Premier Yitzhak Rabin and his negotiating team.

The official, who refused to be identified, also said chances for a settlement when Kissinger returns to the Middle East next month are 50-50 at best. U.S. officials have given the same estimate.

The official said "Egypt wants the maximum territory, and paying as little as possible." But he said Israel will not yield the strategic Mitla and Gidi mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields for anything less than a commitment by Egypt not to use force, or threaten the use of force, against Israel.

He said another major option being discussed was an Israeli withdrawal up to the passes and excluding the oil fields, but for this Egypt would have to "create an atmosphere" of peace.

Betty Ford 'sticks to guns' on rights issue

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford vowed Friday to "stick to my guns" and keep lobbying for the Equal Rights Amendment in spite of heavy criticism from anti-ERA women who picketed the White House.

"I'm going to stick to my guns and will continue to do what I can as long as I feel I can be helpful," the First Lady said of her controversial effort to help get ratification of the amendment banning legal discrimination based upon sex.

"...I'm going to work on all of the states. We're hopeful we can win in the long run."

A few hours before Mrs. Ford spoke to reporters, 35 women picketed the White House with placards reading "stop ERA" and "happiness is stopping ERA." The women, many of them young and clad in blue jeans, were protesting Mrs. Ford's personal campaign on behalf of the amendment.

At an impromptu news conference, Mrs. Ford indicated she was undaunted.

"I really do believe everyone should have an equal opportunity," she said. "I believe this should be true in terms of race, color, creed and sex."

Answering a charge that she was using government facilities and funds to lobby for ratification of the amendment, she said, "I'm just using my own home."

Mrs. Ford concedes she recently telephoned legislators in North Dakota, Illinois, Missouri and Arizona to encourage them to vote for the ERA. The North Dakota legislature last week ratified the amendment, but the Arizona Senate defeated it 18 to 14 Thursday night.

ERA, an amendment which would overturn any law or legal procedure which discriminates on the basis of sex, has been ratified by 34 states. Four more state legislatures must approve it before it can become a part of the Constitution.

A spokesman for the anti-ERA demonstrators accused Mrs. Ford and several federal agencies of improperly spending taxpayers' money on behalf of the amendment. They asked for equal time to present their case at the White House.

Mrs. Ford had no immediate reply.

Ruling on Nixon tapes extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday temporarily extended its order blocking the government from asserting full ownership of former President Richard M. Nixon's official tapes and documents until the constitutional issues in the dispute are resolved.

The Appeals Court action to continue the order had no direct impact on the dispute since U.S. District Judge Charles Richey, who issued a ruling Jan. 31 awarding ownership of the documents to the government, already has turned his attention to the constitutional questions raised by Nixon's lawyers.

The tapes and documents in question are not Nixon's personal memorabilia and correspondence but materials that accumulated as he pursued the official duties of his office.

The constitutional issues stem from Nixon's challenge of a law passed by Congress late last year and signed by President Ford that puts those materials under the government's control, particularly for use of the special prosecutor's Watergate-related investigations.

Richey has asked for and received the names of two other federal judges to sit with him and decide whether the constitutional challenges deserve the consideration of a three-judge panel. The Appeals Court said this was the appropriate route to take "and no further action by us is needed in that regard."

State Bar suspends 2 break-in figures

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former presidential aide John Ehrlichman and former Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Mardian were suspended from practicing law in California Friday for helping cover up the Watergate break-in.

The penalty imposed by the state Supreme Court was the second such for Ehrlichman, who was suspended last Sept. 12 upon conviction of perjury and conspiracy in the break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

Ehrlichman and Mardian were convicted in January of plotting to cover up the break-in at Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington D.C.

"There is probably cause to believe that the crime involved moral turpitude," the judges said in issuing the suspensions, which are indefinite pending further order of the court.

The Supreme Court must, under the State Bar Act, suspend an attorney convicted of a crime which involves moral turpitude.

If and when either of Ehrlichman's convictions becomes final, the court will ask the State Bar to hold a hearing and recommend whether the suspension should be made permanent. In Mardian's case, the Bar's hearing would decide whether he should be suspended for a limited time or disbarred.

Sirica to sentence Watergate 4 Friday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Friday threw out all remaining challenges to the convictions of four former Nixon aides for conspiring to cover-up the Watergate scandal. He said he would impose sentences next Friday.

Sirica said he found no valid claims to support the defendants' efforts to overturn the guilty verdicts or receive new trials. They argued that evidence against them was not sufficient to sustain convictions, but Sirica said the court "cannot agree with the defendants' conclusion."

THE FOUR men face combined maximum sentences totaling 75 years in prison and fines of $103,000.

On New Year's Day, the cover-up jury returned guilty verdicts against H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, once the top two White House aides to President Richard M. Nixon, and two officials of Nixon's 1972 campaign, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Robert C. Mardian.

The three-month trial focused on the Nixon administration's role in the June 17, 1972, break-in and bugging at the Democratic National Headquarters and subsequent efforts to cover-up the scandal.

The only defendant cleared of the felony charges was Kenneth W. Parkinson, who served as a lawyer for the reelection committee.

The new trial requests lodged from Mitchell's assertion that prosecutor James Neal prejudiced his case by stating twice in closing arguments his belief Mitchell was guilty, to Haldeman's protests that Sirica erred by not granting a delay to allow for a deposition by Nixon.

WHEN the delay request was made, Nixon was recovering from complications arising from blood clots in his leg, and court doctors determined he could not make a deposition until Jan. 6 — five days after the guilty verdicts were returned.

Mardian argued he should have received a separate trial after his lawyer, David Bress, became ill and could not continue to actively represent him. Bress' partner, Thomas Green, took over, and Sirica said he provided a skillful defense.

Ehrlichman raised 19 separate points which Sirica said had been adequately considered in trial and pretrial proceedings.

The court also threw out arguments that pretrial publicity prevented a fair trial, challenges to jury selection methods, challenges to the original indictments and requests by Haldeman for a new trial based on new evidence and possible juror misconduct.

The charges and maximum penalties faced by each:

— Mitchell, 61, guilty on five separate counts: conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying on three separate occasions to either the Watergate grand jury or the Senate Watergate committee; maximum prison term of 25 years and fines totaling $37,000.

— Haldeman, 48, convicted of five separate felonies: conspiracy, obstruction of justice and three counts of perjury before the Watergate committee; maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and fines of $21,000.

— Ehrlichman, 49, convicted on four charges: conspiracy, obstruction of justice and two counts of lying to the grand jury; prison term up to 20 years and fines totaling $35,000.

— Mardian, 50, guilty of a single count of conspiracy in the cover-up; faces a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

Third party 'possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disenchanted with the Republican administration, M. Stanton Evans, the chairman of the American Conservative Union, and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., began Friday laying the foundation for a possible third political party.

But Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois and other Republicans speaking at a political action conference here urged that disgruntled conservatives not bolt the GOP, but rather work inside the party structure to formulate changes.

EVANS, editor of the Indianapolis News, said he believes the Ford-Rockefeller administration is drifting leftward.

"People are unhappy with high taxes, inflation, intrusion into their personal lives, welfare and busing," said Evans. "The American people are becoming increasingly conservative."

Evans envisioned a melding of the constituencies of former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, a Republican, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace, a Democrat, in the proposed new party. "Our job is to reach that constituency," Evans said in a speech to 500 persons attending a convention sponsored by the American Conservative Union and the Young Americans for Freedom.

BOTH Helms and Evans suggested the nation's conservatives call a platform-drafting commission immediately.

If neither the Republican nor Democratic parties embrace the resulting platform, then the foundation will have been laid for a new political party, said Helms.

"There will be no new party — unless one is necessary, and if we see that a new party is necessary, then we will be ready," Helms said.

His remarks were in a speech Friday night.

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, the Friday night banquet speaker, said in an interview that he hasn't "totally given up" on the Republican party.

"Certainly I wouldn't rule out the possibility of a third party," said Ash-brook, "but it would take a very prominent leader — like Ronald Reagan — to draw a lot of people."

REAGAN is to address the conference tonight. He has shown reluctance to get involved in a third party movement in the past.

Newsman appeal rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Thursday let stand the contempt of court conviction of a Los Angeles reporter who refused to turn over evidence he had relating to the Patricia Hearst kidnapping.

The justices declined to hear an appeal by Will Lewis, who was sent to jail after he refused to give the grand jury an original tape recording allegedly made by Miss Hearst, the kidnapped newspaper heiress.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the contempt citation on grounds the grand jury was performing its proper investigatory duty. Justice William O. Douglas had ordered Lewis released from jail until the Supreme Court could act on his appeal.

THE Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, which assisted in Lewis' appeal, said it was "gravely disappointed" by the Supreme Court's action and felt it "poses a grave threat to all newsmen." The committee contended the California reporter's shield law, which barred subpoena of the materials, was circumvented when prosecutors succeeded in getting a federal subpoena.

Douglas also ordered Lewis released on another contempt charge related to his refusal to give a grand jury a communique from a group which took responsibility for two hotel bombings. That case has not reached the high court.

Douglas, still hospitalized from a stroke, did not take part in the decision not to hear the appeal.

LEWIS made copies of the original tape, plus photocopies of documents involving the bombing of the state attorney general's office, both of which were subpoenaed. But he refused to turn over the original tapes and papers.

Lewis said the FBI and the grand jury hoped to find fingerprints of suspects on the tapes and papers, and possibly trace the tape recording machine.

Lewis also refused to answer grand jury questions about whether his station, KPFF-FM, a member of the Pacifica Group, had helped prepare the tape.

T-men will check out news media

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is instituting a check of bags and briefcases of news media personnel because of the recent bombing at the State Department and the threat of unpredictable terrorist actions, it was announced Friday.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters at his morning news briefing of the new Secret Service security checks. He asked all "to cooperate for our mutual safety."

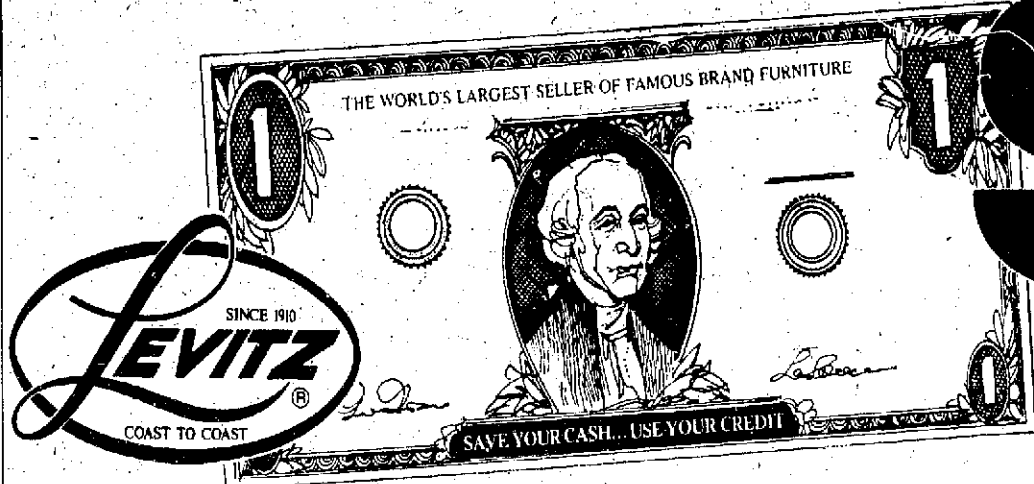

Because President Ford "has more frequent and closer contact with members of the press," Nessen said "the Secret Service feels we need to institute these procedures."

He emphasized that there is "no harassment here at all" but simply a security measure in requiring a check through bags and equipment at the gates.

THE PRESS secretary was asked whether the Secret Service feels the press corps constitutes a threat to the President.

He replied there is "absolutely no thought whatever" on that score but that the measures were instituted because of fear that some outsider might put something into a bag or briefcase of a member of the news media when they were not aware of it.

Pilots winning ban on hazardous cargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Line Pilots Association said Friday that hazardous cargo has been removed from more than 50 passenger aircraft since its embargo on hazardous materials went into effect Feb. 1.

At the same time, the association accused the Department of Transportation of making a "complete mockery of safety" by trying to put pressure on airlines to violate the pilot's embargo.

The association announced last month that its members would not accept after Feb. 1 any hazardous cargo other than radioactive and biological shipments destined for medical use, dry ice and magnetic materials for transportation on passenger-carrying aircraft.

It warned that its pilots would refuse to fly passenger aircraft loaded with such materials unless the airline removed the cargo.

There have been some delays because of pilot's ordering cargo removed, the association said, but the delays have been small.

Although the embargo applies only to U.S. domestic and international flights whose pilots are represented by the association, two international carriers also have joined in the embargo effort, ALPA said Friday. It said Japan Air Lines and British Airlines also were embargoing hazardous cargo on passenger jets.

The only U.S. airline not affected by the ban is American Airlines, whose pilots are represented by a different union.

The association said it took its action only because the government had failed to enforce existing regulations and to develop additional standards to ensure passenger safety.

The labor association said cargo that has been removed since the embargo went into effect ranged from shipments of hydrochloric acid to compressed gases.

2 airlines in monopoly indictments

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury Friday indicted Braniff Airways Inc. and Texas International Airlines Inc. on charges of conspiring to monopolize airline business among Dallas-Forth Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

The indictment, returned in U.S. District Court in San Antonio and announced by the Justice Department, accused the two firms of attempting to exclude Southwest Airlines Inc. from operating at airports in the three metropolitan areas.

Braniff and Texas International were accused of attempting to delay Southwest's entry into the market and increase the cost for the firm.

The indicted companies exchanged information, schedules and fares to step up the competitive pressures against Southwest and jointly undertook a boycott of Southwest by preventing passengers from canceled flights to switch to Southwest flights, the indictment said.

The alleged conspiracy began some time before May, 1971 and continued at least until 1973, the indictment said.

The federal grand jury in San Antonio has been investigating the case since late 1972.

Magazine ads help spur arms sales

By RICHARD PYLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American helicopter company involved in the creation of an airmobile strike force for the Iranian army promotes its attack helicopters with internationally circulated magazine ads that read like a sales pitch for a headache remedy.

"Enemy tank attack! You can stop it fast. With the world's most effective antitank system," announces a headline in a full-page advertisement placed in the magazine Modern Asia by the Bell Helicopter Co. of Ft. Worth, Tex.

The firm will furnish 489 helicopters to Iran at a cost of about $1 million each. A sister company, Bell Helicopter International, was reported this week to be under special contract to train an Iran Sky Cavalry Brigade modeled after U.S. Army helicopter forces in Vietnam.

Both companies are owned by Textron Corp. of Providence, R. I. The international firm was set up by the parent company for the Iran project, in which 1,500 U.S. civilians, many of them Vietnam veterans, will train the Iranians in combat flying, maintenance and other skills.

Like other companies which build military and civilian products, Bell Helicopter runs ads in business, industrial and aviation magazines published here and abroad.

Many such ads feature photos or drawings of military hardware attracting readers to accounts of the firm's general achievements or reputation in sophisticated research and development. But they rarely contain such a vivid appeal to potential military customers as the recent Bell ad.

The ad centers around Bell's Cobra gunship, a fast, rocket-firing attack helicopter developed for and used extensively in Vietnam, primarily in support of ground troops. Above a drawing of a Cobra in action, the ad describes its potential:

"The Cobra strikes at long range from concealed defensive positions. Target in view, it leaps up from ground cover. Unleashes its ordnance with precision accuracy. Then leaves. Fast!"

Combined with a reconnaissance craft and a utility helicopter for carrying troops, supplies and casualties, the Cobra forms what the ad calls "the world's most effective air mobility team."

The advertisement closes with the slogan, "Peacekeepers around the world depend on Bell Helicopter."

According to company officials, Bell has sold 20,000 helicopters since 1947, about 2,000 of them to foreign countries. They said Spain is the only country to have bought Cobras, a total of eight. But the Iran contract—with the U.S. government as the broker—calls for 202 of the $1 million AHJ "Seacobras," a model so advanced that even the U.S. Army doesn't have it.

Sales of military hardware are made either through U.S. government aid programs or directly to foreign governments with State Department approval. Although the Bell ads are published in publicly circulated magazines, "there is not a chance in the world of any private citizen buying such a helicopter," company spokesman Marty Reisch said.

Company officials said that most sales probably result from product demonstration tours and are handled through diplomatic channels, but added that the advertising helps bring the helicopter to the attention of heads of state and other influential people.

Reisch said Bell competes in the military market with British, French and other American manufacturers "and there's an awareness factor in a competitive situation, in which the ads serve a certain purpose."

"It's like a person buying a car; he has a number of options and he picks the one he wants."

Pilot reaction to warning 'may have' avoided crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quicker pilot reaction to a warning horn might have prevented TWA Flight 514 from crashing into a Virginia mountain, killing all 92 people aboard, a federal inspector said Friday.

Richard R. Nevill told an inquiry into the Dec. 1 crash that the horn's beep eight seconds before impact, set off automatically by radio altimeter, signaled Flight 514 was just 500 feet off the ground.

At that point the doomed jetliner was half a mile from the ridge where it crashed, flying towards the peak about 200 feet below mountain-top level.

Asked whether a burst of power applied immediately after the horn's warning could have carried the Boeing 727 safely over the mountain, Nevill replied: "I would have to assume that would be possible."

He emphasized in testimony to the National Transportation Safety Board, however, that the speed of pilot reaction would depend on how busy he was at the time.

Flight 514's crew was fighting hard against storm winds. The pilot tried to apply extra power six seconds after the horn sounded and was climbing when the jetliner smashed into the mountain 95 feet below its top.

Nevill, chief Federal Aviation Administration inspector assigned full-time to TWA, said thousands of pilots might have read the flight controller's handbook out of context and become confused about the meaning of landing approach clearances.

Eagleton claims Ford criticism irresponsible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., accused the Ford administration Friday of "playing a dangerously irresponsible game" in criticizing Congress for cutting off military aid to Turkey.

President Ford said in a foreign policy speech in New York Thursday that the cutoff, for use of U.S. weapons in last summer's invasion of Cyprus will "seriously impair our relations with a valued ally."

Eagleton, a sponsor of the cutoff amendment to the 1974 foreign aid bill, said he feared "the Turkish government will see the administration's statements as part of a strategy to overcome Congress' necessary action."

Restructure of Vinnell OK'd

Associated Press

A California firm with a $77 million contract to train Saudi Arabian troops has been given permission to reorganize, and a Lebanese businessman may become a part owner, according to documents filed with the state Department of Corporations.

Citing severe cash problems and multimillion-dollar losses on construction projects, Vinnell Corp. of Alhambra received permission from the department Jan. 27 to sell voting control in the firm for about $500,000, the documents show.

Chassan I. Shaker of Beirut, identified as president of Banque de Liban et d'Outre-Mer, is to invest $125,000.

Vinnell has been the center of a national political controversy since The Associated Press revealed that the company had a Pentagon contract for the Saudi operation.

A company spokesman said Shaker expressed interest in investing in Vinnell about a year ago. "He was sent a prospectus on the reorganization," the spokesman said. "But as of now, no money has been invested."

William Hilger, Vinnell's corporate secretary, refused to comment Friday on the reorganization or to say how serious the firm's financial difficulties are. The company reported doing more than $200 million worth of business in Vietnam on cost-plus U.S. military contracts.

losses in all but one of the last five fiscal years, anticipating losses of about $5.8 million on the nearly completed Grand Coulee hydroelectric project in Washington and a $4 million investment in a residential development in California.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

It's bad to get mad

According to tradition a man approached Mohammed and asked of the prophet a suggestion for spiritual benefit. "Do not get angry," Mohammed replied. Thinking the prophet had misunderstood the question the man repeated it. Again Mohammed answered, "Do not get angry."

Anger is one of the trickiest personal problems. The folklore and religious teachings of history are full of warnings about its bad effects. "Anger is short madness," wrote the Roman poet Horace, "so control your passion or it will control you." Will Rogers cracked: "People who fly into a rage always make a bad landing." All these people are saying, "It's bad to get mad."

Anger of the slow-burning variety, commonly known as resentment, sometimes does more damage than do fits of violent temper. Easier to conceal, oftentimes hiding in the unconscious, it is harder to come to grips with and difficult to cure. John Ellis Large relates an interesting case of smoldering resentment.

George had become quite a problem to his wife, to himself, to everybody. He was irritable, irascible, critical of everyone, always out of sorts. His state of mind affected his health, and he suffered from nervous tension — got so he took a dozen kinds of pills. George was not doing well in business, either, and others were being advanced ahead of him.

George's boss, also concerned, told Sara that her husband was contentious, hard to get along with, downright cranky. He said, "I hope you can do something with him. He's got a lot of ability but he is his own worst enemy."

So Sara tried to get a few thoughts across to her husband. But he responded, "Get off my neck! Everybody else is on my neck. Now you've climbed on. Is that the way a wife is supposed to act?"

The troubled woman

then went to see Dr. Large. "I'm in trouble. I have a real problem — my husband." And she told him how things were. "Stop talking to him about himself," Dr. Large advised her. "Don't nag him, don't pester him. Lay off. Just love him. But that won't be enough. Your husband's trouble is deep-seated. We must try to reach the disorder in his basic attitudes. What are George's sleeping habits?"

"He tosses most of the night but about five a.m. falls into a deep, sound sleep."

Sara was then given what seemed strange advice. She was told to be awakened at the time her husband went into deep sleep, and to work mentally and prayerfully to project creative thoughts into George's deep unconscious. In thought she was to picture this man as peaceful and free of tension; she was to visualize him as affable and friendly in his relationships. This procedure was to be followed daily until a change in the man's attitudes was noted.

So this devoted wife got herself awake at five o'clock every morning and followed directions. Weeks went by without any sign that George felt different in any way. Then one day he said, "Wonder how come everybody at the office is so much nicer than they used to be? They must have begun to realize how badly they'd been treating me."

Some weeks later the boss called George in and informed him, "I'm making you a division manager."

George was astonished. "But why?" he involuntarily blurted out.

"Because of the way you've changed," the boss said. "I've never seen a more remarkable change in a man. You're cooperative and agreeable. You act happy and you even seem enthusiastic. You are no longer so tense and on edge."

What does a rural church do beside hold worship services and try to scrape together enough money to pay the pastor?

Plenty, if it is anything like Peoples Temple Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) of Redwood Valley, a wide place in the road in Mendocino County.

Peoples Temple has added huge "branches" in Los Angeles and San Francisco, and other branches elsewhere.

It provides housing and care for the elderly and for orphans.

It has an extensive program to help people free themselves from bondage to drugs.

It provides dormitories and other help for young college students.

It has eliminated racism. The members are of all colors and ethnic backgrounds.

It has a huge agricultural mission involving thousands of acres in Guyana, South America. With the aid of the government it is establishing farming methods to help the people to become independent and self-sufficient. Emphasis is on diversified farming.

Peoples Temple sponsors tours. Many hundreds went by buses to the nation's capital. The Washington Post praised them as just about the most wonderful tourists that city had ever seen.

Peoples Temple crusades for freedom of the press with more than words. It recently gave some prominent newspapers $4,400 to be used in court cases involving freedom.

And it runs a refuge for animals that need a home.

These are just a few of the things a country church is doing. It is strong for the usual things — worship, music, social events, educational activities, etc., etc.

Its manifold — and expensive — activities depend upon contributions and church fund-raising events like bake sales.

The prime cause of all this activity is the Rev. Jim V. Jones, pastor for 23 years with time out for two years as a foreign missionary. They live in a modest home with their son and their nine adopted children of various races. But, of course, a pastor whose parish includes San Francisco, Los Angeles, a hunk of South America and the world doesn't spend all his time in his study.

Like so many pastors of small churches, Pastor Jones for many years had other jobs. He was a public school teacher. He moonlighted in various business activities rather successfully. His wife, Marceline, is a professional in social work.

Although he has the proper theological credentials, the essence of his Christianity is summed up with these oft-repeated words: "The highest worship of God is service to our fellow man."

Michael J. Prokes, former news bureau chief for the CBS affiliate in Sacramento, joined the Peoples Temple staff after doing a news feature about it.

He said of his pastor: "I would say his goal is to help bring about, in a most practical way, a society in which there is true brotherhood and where those who are disadvantaged through no fault of their own have their basic needs met. Perhaps this sounds a bit idealistic but I have personally seen this ministry, under Pastor Jones' guidance, eliminate a remarkable amount of human suffering (not to mention animal suffering)."

A number of ordained ministers together with professionals in other fields work in the Peoples Temple.

NONE OF US CAN BEND HISTORY...

Few will have the greatness to bend history itself, but each of us can work to change a small portion of events, and in the total of all those acts will be written the history of this generation.

Lutheran churches form action group

An "Action Group," involving seven area congregations of the Long Beach-Lakewood area of The American Lutheran Church (ALC), has been organized to carry forward implementation of a nationwide united Mission Appeal (UMA). This appeal will raise additional funds to expand the mission outreach of The American Lutheran Church (ALC).

Pastor J. Bernhard Brethem is the Long Beach area group director.

Leaders in the local churches include: Rev. John Stendahl and Mr. Cecil Ambuhel, Holy Spirit Lutheran in Lakewood.

Rev. Paul Egertson and Mr. John Bratt, St. Timothy Lutheran-Lakewood.

Rev. Rolf Brog-Breen and Mr. Palmer Oien, Bethel Lutheran - Long Beach.

Rev. Joseph Johnson and Mr. Wallace Moore, Christ Lutheran - Long Beach.

Mr. Fred Streetz and Ms. Marcia Strahl, Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity - Long Beach.

Rev. Virgil Bjerke and Dr. Roy Anderson, Our Saviour's Lutheran - Long Beach.

Mr. Robert Smith and Mr. Allan Freeman, University Lutheran in Long Beach.

The United Mission Appeal (UMA) seeks a minimum of $25,000,000 in addition to the church body's regular budget which is $26,225,000 for 1975. The gifts, which will be pledged by members early in 1975, will be divided equally between new outreach programs in the United States and in the 16 overseas areas which the ALC serves. The goal of the seven churches is $70,900.

House unit eyes gas tax, rebate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House leadership task force on energy is leaning toward recommending an across-the-board tax on gasoline to reduce nonessential driving "without pushing the economy over the brink," the chairman said Friday.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., told reporters the task force had not voted on any specific proposals yet but that the gasoline tax, coupled with a rebate at the end of the year, had emerged as a foremost prospect.

HE SAID the proposals should be in shape for consideration by the overall Democratic House by early March as a substitute for the President's energy program, which Wright and others have called devastatingly inflationary.

Another probable recommendation, Wright said, will be for a federal excise tax on high-gasoline-consuming new cars, to be paid by the buyer. The government would give the buyer a rebate, or cut in the new car price, on models which give good gasoline mileage.

Wright said a $1,000 spread between the maximum excise tax and rebate on new car prices was being considered, with 18 gallons a mile the projected average.

HE SAID for all practical purposes a thorough rationing plan had been discarded as too cumbersome.

The Senate is expected to consider within the next few weeks legislation to block President Ford's imposition of a $3 per barrel import tax on petroleum products, which the Democrats say would add more than $700 to the average taxpayer's expenses in the coming year from direct and indirect price rises.

The House already has voted to block the excise tax.

He noted that gasoline for driving farm machinery and for making such items as fertilizer would be exempted, so food prices would not be driven up as a result, and that the intent was to hit only the unessential fuel consumption.

THE GASOLINE tax, might start at 8 cents a gallon this year, move to 12 cents next year and 16 cents the next, Wright said.

In yacht-docking controversy

Nowell to get $7,920 bill

Los Angeles City Councilman Louis R. Nowell probably will be charged $7,920 for allegedly docking his 51-foot yacht illegally in Los Angeles Harbor for four months, says a city attorney's report.

However, while Nowell appeared liable for the dockage fee, there won't be criminal prosecution of the councilman, a report recently submitted by Mike Steed of the city attorney's office said.

The report noted that the district attorney's office had conducted its own investigation and concluded no criminal action was warranted. Steed said the criminal branch of the district attorney's office declined to issue a criminal complaint for four reasons:

ONE REASON no complaint was issued was that the Harbor Department's former general manager, Bernard J. Caughlin, was said to have given Nowell permission to park his boat at the public landing at Berth 186, at the foot of Avalon Boulevard in Wilmington.

Further, Steed said, the Harbor Department failed to take the steps necessary to revoke that permission or to remove Nowell's yacht, the Sharon, from the landing.

A third reason no complaint was issued was the lack of evidence of criminal intent, Steed said, and the fourth reason was that the statutory limit on prosecution of misdemeanor offenses had long ago passed.

Nowell was accused of mooring the boat at the landing for a four-month period in 1972.

STEED said the amount Nowell will be billed was calculated by the Harbor Department's wharfinger's office and based on terms of the department's Tariff No. 3.

That tariff provides that if a boat owner fails to remove his craft from a public dock he can be charged quadruple the normal dockage rate plus $10 for each day the boat is docked.

The recommendation that Nowell be billed the $7,920 now goes to the general manager who will refer the matter to the board of harbor commissioners. This commission cannot grant free dockage and must, under terms of the tariff, bill Nowell for the money, Steed said.

NOWELL'S yacht has been the center of controversy before, the previous incident relating to his seal on the South Coast Regional Commission.

Last October Nowell was under fire for voting for construction of an oceanfront condominium while he received a 50 per cent discount on docking his yacht at a marina owned by the condominium developer.

Instead of the normal $120 a month fee for dockage at Dolphin Marina in Marina del Rey, Nowell was paying only $60 a month.

The Dolphin Marina is owned by the firm of Goldrich and Kest, Inc., developers of a 46-unit condominium at 1050 E. Ocean Blvd. Nowell was one of eight commissioners voting for the project, while two commissioners voted against it.

At the time Nowell said he didn't know the developers also owned the marina, and that as soon as he learned he was paying a special rate he began paying the full sum.

Developer Jona Goldrich said the special rate his marina gave for dockage of Nowell's yacht was "a difference of $60 a month — peanuts."

In December, when the matter of free dockage came before the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners, Nowell said he was the target of "three disgruntled people who worked against me during the last campaign, and they have left no stone unturned within my private and public life..."

Situation tense—tunaboats fined

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Two of the seven American tunaboats seized by Ecuador have been fined $855,860 for violating the 200-mile fishing limit and noncooperation, the manager of the American Tunaboat Association said Friday.

Ecuador also announced the seven would be transferred this weekend from Salinas to Manata, 100 miles north, where refrigeration and processing facilities are available for offloading tuna.

The tunaboat Neptune was fined $281,680 for fishing within the limit without a license. The A.K. Strom was fined $441,000 and its captain, David Rico, an additional $133,000 for not cooperating with Ecuadorian authorities, Manager August Felando said.

The seven vessels were taken last month and have not been released despite State Department negotiations. They have been fined $1.8 million so far, but a stumbling block appears to be whether the tuna aboard belongs to Ecuador or the owners.

Several incidents were reported among the vessels, including the disappearance of the Ecuadorian guards' weapons aboard the A.K. Strom. According to the State Department, neither the guards nor the crew knew what happened to them.

"The situation appears to be running downhill," Felando said. "I talked to Ecuador today and have been told the consul representatives have been removed from the boats and that Ecuadorian guards have been rearmed and are pointing their weapons at crewmen."

ble to correct the problem."

A Chrysler Corp. spokesman in Beverly Hills said the repairs could be made in less than an hour while customers waited. He said instructions on how to fix the pickup trucks would be distributed to dealers within a week.

California accounts for about 10 per cent or more of the nation's automobile sales.

Violations of California's toughest-in-the-nation exhaust emission standards were detected in tests conducted by Chrysler under supervision of the state, Quinn said.

A board spokesman explained the vehicles were emitting too much carbon monoxide or oxides of nitrogen. The problem was traced to one of two sources, carburetion or exhaust gas recirculators, depending on the type of engine.

State authority to initiate recalls for smog violations has been used previously, but never to this magnitude, the board said.

The recall and repair campaign is keyed to the type of engine. Those covered in the order were the 225-cubic inch displacement engine, the 318-cubic inch, the 360-cubic inch with four barrel carburetor, the 400-cubic inch with four-barrel carburetor and the 440-cubic inch engine.

The pickups are equipped with a 225-cubic inch engine.

During his election campaign, Brown promised major initiatives to cleanse the California air of smog. He appointed Quinn, his long-time aide and campaign manager, to head up the effort.

The two other board members, both Brown appointees, are Robert F. Sawyer, a mechanical engineering professor and auto smog expert from the University of California at Berkeley, and Mary Nicholas, a conservationist attorney specializing in air pollution lawsuits.

SPIRAL SLOWING

The plant employs about 930 persons, including 300 who were laid off in November.

The Commerce Department reported an $8 billion deficit in the U.S. balance of payments last year, with more than half the total accumulated in the fourth quarter of 1974. In 1973, there was a $1.21 billion surplus — the first yearly surplus on record.

The department said some of the 1974 deficit was due to less foreign investment in the United States, partly because lower interest rates at home make it more profitable for people to invest overseas.

The lower interest rates generally are aimed at encouraging businesses to borrow and spend to produce more and ease the recession.

The Federal Reserve Board, in a report on Thursday, said industrial output dropped 3.6 per cent in January, the sharpest decrease since an 8.9 per cent decline in December, 1937.

The decline included a production decrease in the hard-hit auto industry which reported Thursday that sales during the first 10 days of February were down 5.1 per cent from a year ago, despite rebate programs.

Several major banks, including the two largest — Bank of America and First National City Bank of New York — announced they were lowering their prime rate to 8.75 per cent, following the lead of New York's Morgan Guarantee Trust which made a similar move Feb. 5. The prime rate is the amount banks charge their biggest and best customers.

Robertson, senior vice president of the bank, said the unemployment rate, at 8.2 per cent in January, would go up to 9 per cent, but he added: "I hope 9 per cent will be the limit, with an average for the year as a whole of 8 1/2 per cent."

On the New York Stock Exchange, traders tried to weigh the favorable news on inflation and interest rates against the discouraging report of lower industrial output and sagging auto sales.

There were some early declines, reflecting profit taking after Thursday's session when a record 35.13 million shares were traded and the Dow Jones industrial average gained sharply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined slightly early in the day, then recovered closed at 734.20, up 7.38 from Thursday. It was the highest closing level since Aug. 15.

Daughter finds body of mother

The body of a 43-year-old Compton woman was found in the bedroom of her ransacked house Friday by a daughter returning home, police said. Mae Barnes, of 434 W. Bennett Ave., a teacher at the 99th Street School in Los Angeles, died sometime between Wednesday and Friday, investigators said. Coroner's deputies said she may have been strangled.

Police said the woman's body was discovered at 1:26 a.m.

Gas station dealers back odd-even plan

Our L.A. Bureau

An association representing thousands of service station dealers Friday came out in strong support of Supervisor James Hayes's proposal to President Ford that California be allowed to return to the odd-even gasoline sales plan instead of paying a proposed conservation tax.

In a telegram to Hayes, A.A. Arnold, vice president of the California Service Station Association, said his group "whole heartedly concurs" with Hayes's recommendations on allocation and odd-even purchases.

Arnold said his board of directors, after consulting many service station dealers, agrees that additional restrictions are needed to help achieve the aim of Project Independence.

Hayes proposed to the President Thursday that California be exempted from Ford's suggested gasoline conservation tax of from 11 to 15 cents a gallon, and that instead the state's gasoline supply be cut to 75 per cent of its 1972 allocation.

Then, according to Hayes' plan, individual counties could revive the odd-even sales program which ended the chaos of long waiting lines at service stations during the fuel shortage of Jan. 1974.

Hayes said Eric Zausner, chief deputy federal energy administrator, told him Friday he has not yet had a chance to put Hayes's proposal to Ford, but said he hoped to contact Hayes in a few days.

Court OKs $602,500 for hurt worker

A $602,500 settlement for injuries suffered by construction worker Melvin Merryman April 10, 1970, was approved Friday by Long Beach Superior Court Judge George Francis.

Merryman fell 60 feet into the concrete riverbed of the Los Angeles river from a freeway bridge being constructed in Compton. He suffered a broken back, pelvis and legs, among other injuries.

His Wilmington attorney, Larry Booth, said that although his client is now confined to a wheelchair, further surgery may enable him to walk but not work.

In the suit, Booth asserted that it was the responsibility of the state to make sure that the contractor maintained safe working conditions. The state failed to do this, he said, and guard rails were not in place on the side of the bridge.

The state Department of Public Works will pay

$450,000 of the judgment, the Bid-Well Corporation $100,000, and a Workmen's Compensation Insurance Company, $52,500.

Merryman was working with a large concrete cement machine manufactured by Bid-Well and the suit asserted that the machinery's design was faulty.

L.B. surgeon unique in hernia operation technique

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A Long Beach surgeon has performed more than 16,000 controversial surgical operations to repair hernia of the groin, a medical journal reports.

The surgeon, Dr. Carroll J. Bellis, advocates repair of the hernia (rupture) under local anesthesia with one-day hospitalization and unrestricted activity afterward.

Details of the surgical series, which has taken 33 years to accumulate, are reported in the latest issue of International Surgery.

"Each of the 16,000 patients was out of bed and walking in the corridors within an hour after operation," Bellis reports in the journal article.

Bellis, who refuses formal interviews with the press because of past harassment from local physicians, says in his journal report that patients can return to work within a few days after the operation, and that includes carpenters, longshoremen, masons and pipefitters.

One recent patient was a stunt man who chose to have his operation in Long Beach because he wanted to get back to work in a hurry. The stunt man's salary: $400 a day.

One medical observer says that

Bellis performs six or seven hernia operations a day five days a week at St. Mary Medical Center. Some of the patients have been celebrities from the entertainment industry.

Bellis says that the operation, no matter how extensive, can be carried out in complete safety.

"The presence of other diseases, like severe heart disease, asthma or emphysema, does not complicate the postoperative course in the slightest."

Typically, he says, the patient is admitted to the hospital the afternoon before operation, does not miss a meal on the day of operation and is discharged the day of the operation fully dressed and walking without assistance. And the patient is in the hospital 24 hours or less.

More than 2,000 of the patients have been over 65 years old and one was 99.

A patient who has not been operated on before for hernia requires about 40 minutes of operating time, Bellis reports.

Skin sutures are removed the day after operation.

In the past 7,180 cases, Bellis has used a segment of polyvinyl ester mesh, a substance commercially known as Mersilene. The mesh replaces the defective area, Bellis explains, supplying a wall where a wall previously was absent.

Use of Mersilene makes unnecessary a "pulling together" of tissue with sutures, a practice which Bellis says may result in a pulling apart later on.

Most other surgeons keep their hernia patients in the hospital three to six days and off the job two to six weeks, one doctor told the Independent Press-Telegram.

But one medical reference book says that hospitalization should last up to seven days and that patients should not return to work for six to eight weeks.

Despite the controversy, patients continue to come to Long Beach from long distances for Bellis' surgical procedure.

This week, one patient was from Guadalajara, another from British Columbia.

Mae Mack, L.B. Goodwill honored for welfare aid

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Winners of the fourth annual awards of the Long Beach Human Relations Commission are Mrs. Mae Mack, who has served the disadvantaged of all ages since coming to the city in 1935, and the Wightman Memorial Goodwill Industries.

The awards, presented annually to an individual and an organization for outstanding contributions to the improvement of human relations in Long Beach, were announced Friday by Dr. Horace Rains, commission chairman.

THEY will be presented at a banquet Thursday, March 20, at 6:30 p.m. in the Golden Sails Inn Convention Center. The program is open to the public, and reservations may be made through the mayor's office in City Hall.

Mrs. Mack, 1223 Myrtle Ave., was nominated by W. Odie Wright, Long Beach superintendent of schools, who cited her "contributions to the welfare of all people in the community" and her "exceptional dedication in bettering human relationships."

In 1971, Mrs. Mack was cited for "Outstanding Leadership and Contributions to the Black Community in its Quest for Progress." The following year, Brethren Manor honored her for service through Senior Opportunities and Services, and last year, the Long Beach Welfare Rights Association awarded her a certificate "In Recognition and Appreciation of Caring."

SHE WAS director of the Anaheim Street USO from 1942 to 1944, and has been a member of the NAACP since 1938. Since 1965, she has been a member of the Central Neighborhood Council, and for many years has been a member of the Ladies Optimistic Guild, a philanthropic club.

Mrs. Mack has worked since 1965 on behalf of antipoverty programs and was a member of the original committee which later incorporated as the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities. She now serves on the city's Senior Citizens Advisory Committee.

Wightman Memorial Goodwill Industries, which operates a rehabilitation workshop at 800 W. Pacific Coast Hwy., was nominated by Orville A. Erickson, chief accountant of the Long Beach Water Department.

ERICKSON said Goodwill Industries has "an outstanding record" as an equal opportunities employer, particularly in the area of rehabilitation services, which are available "regardless of race, creed, color or national origin."

Goodwill has an affirmative action plan covering all aspects of employment and service to clients, and works closely with local employers to place disadvantaged or disabled persons, the nomination said.

Of the current total employment of nearly 180 people daily, Erickson said, nearly 27 per cent represent ethnic groups, including blacks, Spanish-speaking persons, Orientals and American Indians.

"Minorities have received renewed incentive and actual employment, not probable without Goodwill," his nomination said.

New trial asked in 'public land' dispute

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

Attorneys for five east beach landowners, whose property was "confiscated" by the city under a court judgment based on the controversial Gion-Dietz decision, have petitioned for a new trial.

Counsel for the plaintiffs called the action "government piracy." They referred to the Gion-Dietz decision, which makes it legal for government to take away private property if it has been used by the public.

Arguments in the case are scheduled before Long Beach Superior Court Judge Max Wisot Tuesday.

In a 75-page brief filed with the court this week, Beverly Hills attorney Michael M. Berger maintained the court was "persuaded to enter judgments against faultless homeowners...by a skillful display of governmental advocacy."

The homeowners lost a court decision to the city on the basis that there exists over the entire property—homes and all—a recreational easement which belongs to the public. The Gion-Dietz decision held that if for any continuous five-year period the public used the beachfront land, then it was the property of the public. The city subsequently proved that before the homes were built—some of them in the 1920s—the public used the land.

"Rather than by use of the constitutional way of paying for the acquisition, these entities (the city and state) are attempting to accomplish their goal by theft," Berger charged. "The stifling of fundamental personal liberties is what is involved here. . . all of the defendants. . . are having their homes. . . stolen from them by the very governmental bodies that are duty-bound to protect them."

Claiming that the court is the individual citizen's "shield against overreaching or overzealous government officials," Berger said the court should "reconcile...public and private equities."

"Long Beach and the State... have not sought balance," the young attorney charged. "They have done the public and this court a disservice by seeking overbroad, overreaching interpretation of Gion-Dietz, in an effort to confiscate the property of these citizens."

Citing the Supreme Court opinion in the Gion-Dietz case, Berger said the ruling was made based on "current usage" by the public and the fact that there were no structures involved in the disputed properties.

In the case of the Long Beach property owners, Berger said the homes on the property were constructed from 1921 to 1937, eliminating public use of the property at least where the homes stand.

Then, citing the 1970 case of the City of Long Beach vs. Mansell, Berger said that that case, in effect, set the division line between private beach properties and public land at a boundary labeled the Chapter 138 Line. Now, he said, if the people do not have clear title to that boundary line, "the Supreme Court was defrauded. . . the boundary between the homeowners' properties and the public beach is in fact a meaningless figment of the imagination."

He urged the court to "hold Long Beach and the state to their solemn word in the Mansell case and recognize the Chapter 138 line as a real boundary. . ."

"Having led the homeowners to believe that their homes were actually their homes—even to the point of encouraging their development and levying taxes thereon—Long Beach and the state cannot now be heard to claim that the homes are not now the homeowners'—free and clear.

"To allow the city now to contend that the homeowners own anything less than the area they have been occupying would be. . . a violation of every principal of right and morals. . . a grievous wrong."

"If ever a claim was based on state facts, it is the claim of Long Beach and the state to a 'public recreation easement' in this case. These lots have been improved with homes and occupied since the twenties and thirties. That much is conceded.

"Yet, based on evidence purporting to show usage of the subject properties 50 years ago, before the homes were built, Long Beach and the state now claim that they own an easement even where the homes have long stood. And the judgment now entered confirms that easement.

Berger, considered the leading expert in the state on the controversial Gion-Dietz decision, represents five of the seven property owners currently involved in the fight with the city. However, the current cases are not the first time the city had asserted the existence of a similar easement and taken private property without compensation to the property owner.

In the city's first case against another property owner in the same area—Ernest Radford—a judge found that there was a public recreation easement on his property beginning 100 feet southerly of Ocean Boulevard. In the current cases, the easement begins 80 feet southerly of the boulevard, Berger says, giving the city more land.

Pointing out that newly appointed Atty. Gen. Edward Levi noted what he called "an enormous amount of cynicism about the administration of justice in the United States" he also noted that the Court of Appeals recently took judicial notice of the fact a large cross-section of the citizenry is of the opinion that the government is no longer representative of the people.

Bergkvist calls Putnam's 1969 Ringo role a 'fiasco'

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Carl Bergkvist, candidate for Long Beach city attorney in the March 18 primary election, Friday characterized incumbent Leonard Putnam's 1969 official advice to the city on the Ringo issue as a fiasco "that has plagued the city ever since, and the plague is continuing."

Bergkvist, in a news release, pressed Putnam to "explain his legal advice to his client, the City of Long Beach," and traced the controversy over the issue.

In 1962 and 1964 the City Council rejected Ringo as a game of chance and therefore illegal, Bergkvist said. "But on Oct. 28, 1969, despite the fact that the Chief of Police and the City Prosecutor adamantly stated that Ringo was a game of chance and therefore illegal and that a license should not be issued, Mr. Putnam stated to the City Council: 'This game might, if it were brought before the courts and evidence were introduced...it is conceivable, judging from the checkered history of gaming devices in the past, that it also could be declared to be a game of skill,' in other words legal." The City Council then voted 4 to 3 to issue a license for Ringo.

A letter that day from the Chief of Police to the council stated it was the opinion of his office and of the City Prosecutor that Ringo is a game of chance and would violate the Long Beach Municipal Code and the State Penal Code pertaining to lotteries.

One week later, on Nov. 4, 1969, Bergkvist continued, Putnam advised the City Council that it could annul or revoke its previous decision to issue the license. "That advice was given in the face of a statement the previous week during the Ringo hearings by then-assistant City Prosecutor Thomas Zeiger that the city had no power to revoke the licenses of other games of chance on the Pike and that the question had been taken to the Supreme Court of California and so ruled upon.

"On Nov. 18, 1969, Mr. Putnam then took the position that the Oct. 28 vote was null and void because it violated the Municipal Code. In other words, Ringo was illegal. The City Council, relying on Mr. Putnam's advice, voted to annul, or revoke, their prior decision. The Ringo people promptly took them to court and won, as any competent attorney would have known. Mr. Putnam did not."

As evidence of "the continuing plague...of this one piece of indecisive and incompetent advice," Bergkvist noted that within the last two weeks a Long Beach jury convicted several people of running a gambling game, Ringo, and there-by declared the game of Ringo as one of chance and in violation of the Municipal Code.

"Ringo is but one of a number of fiascos which prove that Mr. Putnam should not be again elected to further compound our city's already untenable position. I again publicly ask that Mr. Putnam explain why, after 11 years of confusion and incompetence, he should be reelected," Bergkvist said.

MRS. PHELAN CITED
Lana Phelan, candidate for Long Beach City Council, Seventh District, has been endorsed by the Long Beach Protective Council of Senior Citizens "in recognition of her two-year effort to exempt persons 60 years and older from payment of the utility tax," according to council president James DeWitt.

Mrs. Phelan noted that a proposal to delete the utility tax for the elderly will be made Tuesday, the day of the special Seventh District election to fill the seat vacated by Wayne B. Sharp.

City Manager John R. Mansell told a gathering of senior citizens Thursday he would be bringing a report to City Council Tuesday on the utility tax, a report "I think you will all agree with."

SWITCH TO PERKINS

Alvan A. Fuller, a candidate in the Seventh District special election Tuesday, announced Friday he is withdrawing from the campaign and will support candidate Harold E. Perkins.

Fuller, citing the time demands of his business as the reason for his withdrawal, said he has reviewed the field and believes that Perkins, "with sound community goals and progressive ideas, will best represent and fulfill the needs of our 'middle America' Seventh District. . .his realistic approach to handling existing problems will get the job done."

RUZGIS ON AIRPORT

William J. Ruzgis, Seventh District candidate, said he feels the issue of Long Beach Airport expansion should be placed on the ballot. He said many issues, if put to a vote of the majority, "may not be legally or morally right. Airport expansion appears to be an exception. I feel that this is a personal matter of major concern and should be left directly to the people to decide."

Ruzgis also said he would support all legislation against abortion.

CAUCUS IN FIRST

A caucus to select an endorsee in the Long Beach City Council First District will be held at 2 p.m. today in the Queen Restaurant, 101 Alamitos Ave., sponsored by Long Beach Area Citizens Involved.

Candidates who have accepted speaking invitations are E. John Hanna, Lawrence Goldstein and Paul Diefenbach. All candidates were invited.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Dr. Samuel Ayres of La Canada is an avid pro-se-lyer of planting flowering trees. He's civic-minded and firmly believes that it is just as easy to plant a flowering tree as it is to plant an evergreen one. Flowering trees in their season provide happy colors to vie with the bright sunshine of Southern California.

We too say, it's just as easy to plant a flowering shrub as it is to plant an evergreen one. Not that evergreen shrubs aren't attractive, because they provide restful green foliage. A gardener can have shrub color the year round if he wisely selects shrubs that bloom annually in their season of the year, by choosing winter, spring, summer and fall blooming plants.

ONE OF the lesser known, and perhaps harder to find, is the deciduous Agnes castus, "chaste tree". It is a husky growing shrub that can be trained to grow as a small tree perhaps to around 10 feet. The spikes of lavender-blue blossoms are remindful of lilacs. They provide that needed garden color during the summer into fall. The flat finger-like foliage is a dark green color, gray underneath.

Pruning of shrubs isn't difficult to master if gardener does it at the right time. The right time in many cases is done as the blossoms are cut for table decoration, or soon as the plants have finished blooming.

This pruning principle applies to flowering shrubs and trees that blossom for a certain period, then no more until next year the same season.

THE MOST important pruning factor is to cut just above a leaf, or above a leafless bud, or just above a secondary branch. Cutting between leaves, or buds, or well above a secondary branch, leaves a stub. The sap flowing up and down that branch stops at the topmost bud. It doesn't flow up to the top of the remaining stub. The stub slowly dries and dies. Sometimes the die-back of that stub doesn't stop at the first bud just below the cut. It continues dying down the healthy branch. The die-back occurs more frequently with improperly cut-back rose flower branches.

The gardener decides how far down he wants to cut each branch, then finally he cuts out dead branches, and any crossing branches. Presto, he has done a good professional-like pruning operation!

THERE'S an outstandingly desirable winter-into-spring flowering shrub that provides cut flowers that will last 10 days to three weeks for indoor decoration. It is chamaelaucium, "geraldton wax plant." The fine needle-like leafage forms a delightful background for the dainty cup shape flowers. It too loves lots of sun, but grows spindly form unless gardener prunes it every year as the blossoms are cut. All the gardener needs to do is to cut where ever he wants to, no fussing about how to cut. Clusters of several branches burgeon forth just below the cut.

Geraldton wax plant must be watered only when soil is dry! Do not keep the soil constantly damp or overly wet, because the plants will die.

BOTH shrubs, the vitex and chamaelaucium love lots of sun, and particularly reflected heat, coastwise. Just sunny area for them in drier, colder localities.

Despite their vigorous growth habits, they still need to be planted in a

Jimson weed sale banned in Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — It has rank-smelling leaves, its fruit is prickly and the dictionary says it is "intensely poisonous" — enough to keep even the most enthusiastic naturalists away from the jimson weed.

The state of Oregon decided Friday it had had enough of the jimson weed.

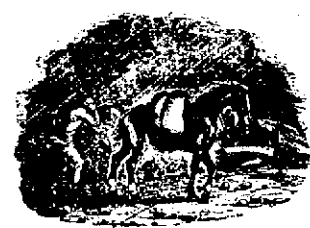

Sale of the semitropical plant has been banned by the state Board of Pharmacy, which said the weed was "a serious threat to public health and safety."

Officials ordered a halt to sales after investigating reports of illness resulting from drinking a tea made from jimson weed. There were no deaths but hospitalization was required for 11 tea drinkers.

Earl's Pearls
Today's Best Laugh: Bob Orben says he's not used to his new bifocals yet: "But it's certainly exciting. This is the first time I ever fell UP the stairs."
Wish I'd Said That: When someone complains about prices today, one thing is certain — he's buying, not selling.
Remembered Quote: "An actor's success has the life expectancy of a small boy with a lighted match about to look into a gas tank." — Fred Allen.

Earl's Pearls: Garson Kanin's book "Hollywood" tells of Sam Goldwyn's excited comment after the Hiroshima explosion: "That atomic bomb — that's dynamite!"
Morty Gunty mentions the woman who reported a thief had stolen $50 worth of groceries from her car: "Took it right out of the glove compartment!"
An actor just signed for John Wayne's new film is sure his role is a good one: "They're giving me almost as much ammunition as they're giving Wayne."

Monday: ???

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON
Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: You begin on an initial, serious view of your circumstances and some hard decisions on what you are and where you want to go but arrive at an upbeat year of progress. You face many surprises and episodes of special, emotional importance. Cultivate relationships with candor and keep them separate from material or business stress. Today's natives plan big and follow up with determination.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Let this be a calm and routine a Sunday as conditions permit. You may revise your views and considerable upsurge of news and events this afternoon and evening.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Bide your time, then pick a fairly late moment to answer a serious question. Take the initiative. You'll get a vigorous response and learn exactly where you stand.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Introductions are in order, so get around town. If you must ask favors, try tonight when the complexities of this mixed Sunday are straightened out once and for all.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The world is a stage, and you have a front seat now. Don't let it bother you that the actors all got a good look! You got a great chance for fun and forgiveness.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Drop old habits, discover unfamiliar places with companions you know well and make new connections for future expansion of your program. Domestic questions resolve themselves.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gather all those whose interests are similar and pool resources for shared entertainment. Children are most likely to take up everyone's extra time and energy.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your mood fluctuates and is susceptible to suggestion. Select optimistic companions. Work out a round of sport or pastimes at a cheerful, new location.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Arrange your possessions and inventory so you can see what's there and whether anything is lacking. Management of others' business is favored if you take the simplest course.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good humor is dominant this Sunday, or should be. Discussion or application of new ideas stirs your local scene. Be sure things are settled by nightfall.

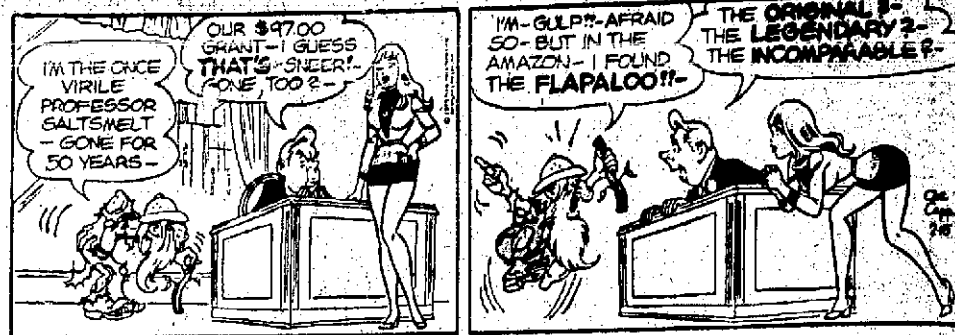

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Once you've made the neighborly rounds expected of you, stay home. You can make everyone happy by improving arrangements. Invite friends in for an evening of talk.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See what you can achieve by letting people be themselves and being yourself. Get reasonable exercise by yourself, if possible. Join others to celebrate.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Crosscurrents of the morning aren't serious. Mend all that needs mending through diligent self-expression. Enjoy yourself tonight at a party.

The Daltons ride again

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Westerns don't play nearly as big a role on television as they once did. If you miss the old shoot-'em-ups, you may wish to tune in a new TV movie, "The Last Day," on Channel 4 from 9 to 11 tonight.

The film is based on fact. It's a dramatization of the last 24 hours of the Dalton gang, whose members rode into Coffeyville, Kan., on Oct. 5, 1892, to raid the town's two banks.

Townpeople, aroused by a former gunman, Will Spence, put up a fight, and within minutes 13 men lay dead, dying or wounded. The gang was wiped out, except for Emmet Dalton, who was seriously wounded and later tried and sent to jail.

Richard Widmark heads the cast as the retired gunman. Barbara Rush plays his wife.

Robert Conrad portrays Bob Dalton, leader of the outlaws, and Loretta Swit (of "M-A-S-H") is his girlfriend, Daisy. Other gang members are Christopher Connelly (of the "Paper Moon" series) as Dick Broadwell, Tim Matheson as Emmet Dalton, Richard Jaeckel as Grat Dalton and Tom Skerritt as Bill Powers.

IF A STORY of three teen-aged boys spending a summer on an island off the New England coast and dreaming of girls is more to your taste, there's also "Summer of '42," a popular movie of 1971. It makes its TV bow from 9 to 11 tonight on Channel 7.

Gary Grimes plays 15-year-old Hermie, and Jennifer O'Neill is the beautiful wife of a soldier away at war who becomes involved briefly with the youth.

Jerry Houser and Oliver Conant play the other two boys, Osey and Benjie, and Katherine Allentuck portrays the teen-aged girl Aggie.

Even though the film has been edited for television, ABC will warn viewers that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.

Later tonight, at 11:30, "The Bridge on the River Kwai," Oscar-winning drama of 1957, will get another airing on Channel 7.

THE "CHER" SERIES makes its debut Sunday from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Channel 2, and if you tuned in the singer-comedienne's CBS special on Wednesday night you have a good indication of the type of series it will be.

There are a lot of talented people behind the scenes, and they make the most of Cher's singing and comedic abilities — not to mention her face and figure.

The series is produced by George Schlatter, the creator of "Laugh-In," and directed by Art Fisher. Choreographer Tony Charnoff, set designer Bobby Kelly and Cher's personal designer of gowns, Bob Mackie, contribute much to the shows, which feature spectacular visual effects.

As for guest stars, Cher says: "I'm trying to make sure that the guests on my show are people I'd change channels to watch myself."

EVEN WITH Raquel Welch, Tatum O'Neal and Wayne Rogers as her guests on Sunday, Cher may find the competition on the other two major networks extremely tough.

On NBC at the same time as Cher's show will be "Highlights of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus," hosted by Bill Cosby. The hour-long special will preempt "The

And starting at 7:30 p.m. Sunday on ABC will be the movie musical "Oliver!" which won six Oscars — including that of best movie — in 1968.

This marks the TV debut of the musical version of the Charles Dickens classic "Oliver Twist." And, bringing the famous Dickens characters to life are Ron Moody as Fagin, Oliver Reed as the villainous Bill Sikes, Mark Lester as young Oliver, Jack Wild as the Artful Dodger, Shani Wallis as Nancy and Harry Secombe as Mr. Bumble.

On the circus special, host Cosby's wife, Camille, and four children will be among those viewing the acts.

DREAMS OF JOINING the circus come true for three 11-year-old youngsters on "Give the Circus a Tumble," at 5:30 p.m. Sunday on Channel 5. It's the second of 12 half-hour "Call It Macaroni" specials designed to help young people discover the different ways Americans live and work.

FRED CHEL, state assemblyman from Long Beach, will be the guest on KNAC's "Audiopinion" at 10 p.m. Sunday (105.5 FM).

Bruins stage blitz; Troy takes tumble

UCLA brilliant, 95-66

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

A St. Valentine's Day massacre it was not, but neither was it hearts and flowers nor love and kisses.

Oregon, committed to its Kamikaze style of basketball and Kung Fu defense, came up empty handed at both ends of the court Friday in suffering a 95-66 embarrassment to UCLA in Pauley Pavilion.

"That's the worst first half ever," said a downcast Duck coach Dick Harter after the annihilation. "I mean that's the worst ever — playing, coaching or watching."

Coupled with Oregon State's 80-76 win over USC, the UCLA victory set up what could be the deciding game in the Pacific-8 Conference when the Bruins and Beavers collide tonight at Pauley.

The Ducks were decimated before many of the 12,451 in attendance were in their seats. Somebody said the game was over after the national anthem.

Pete Trgovich, Dave Meyers, Marques Johnson, Richard Washington and Andre McCarter started for the Bruins and each contributed to a 9-0 lead inside the first three minutes.

Oregon countered with a Greg Ballard free throw and the Bruins ran off seven more markers before Stu Jackson delivered the first Duck field goal with 4:37 elapsed.

It was just so much carnage after that. UCLA showed first half leads of 25-4, 42-9 and 57-24 at the break. Oregon found twine on only eight of 42 first half attempts — a horrendous 19 per cent.

"Our problem wasn't one of offense or defense," said Harter, he-moaning his fifth loss in eight Pac-8 games. "It was a matter of not rebounding, playing through screens, picking up loose balls — just an over-all lax performance."

Oregon, which prides itself on a collection of skinned elbows and floor-burned knees, couldn't handle an equally aggressive Bruin defense that matched the Ducks in intensity without the handicap of personal fouls.

The Ducks were whistled 20 times and lost starters Ballard and Ernie Kent along with reserve Bruce Coldren in the second half.

USC went into its basketball game with Oregon State Friday night still pointing for a Pacific-8 Conference championship.

Today, the Trojans are fretting about their chances of hanging on for second place and a possible berth in the NCAA tournament.

"It will be difficult for everyone from now on," said Trojan coach Bob Boyd after his team had dropped an 80-76 decision to the Beavers before a shocked audience of 7,106 at the L.A. Sports Arena.

USC has lost four of its last five games in league competition and can't afford any more missteps when Oregon comes into the Arena tonight to wind up a weekend series.

The Beavers solidified their hold on second place by stifling USC's high-low passing game and functioning smoothly on offense, centering their game around 6-8 Lonnie Shelton, who had 25 points and 15 rebounds.

"They beat us in every way you can," said Boyd, whose team fell to 4-4 in league while Oregon State increased its conference record to 6-2.

The Trojans were unable to penetrate the Beavers' defense until Shelton, who had served as an enforcer in the middle, drew his fourth personal foul with 9:59 remaining.

By the time USC regrouped for a stretch drive, Oregon State held a 15-point lead at 70-55.

Slowly but steadily, the Trojans cut the deficit until Gus Williams' double-pumper and free throw shaved the Beavers' edge to 76-71 with 1:52 remaining.

But Oregon State's Charlie Neal headed off disaster in the final 112 seconds by twice hitting both ends of one-and-one free throw opportunities while USC fans tried to distract him with noise.

The statistics showed clearly why Oregon State won the game. The Beavers shot .593 per cent from the field, Shelton ramming in 10 of 15.

USC, unable to get its normal amount of high percentage shots, connected on only 40 per cent, 30 of 75.

"This may sound corny," said Boyd, "but I was proud — or impressed — with the way we played the last three or

Casper goes for gimmick, ties for lead

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — Who says you can't teach an old dog new tricks?

At 43 and a 21-year tour veteran, you would think Billy Casper is beyond tampering with his game. After all, he has won 50 tournaments and $1.5 million without any major revision.

But he credits the use of a "gimmick" club for his success on the tour in recent weeks. He fired his sixth consecutive sub-par round Friday, a 4-under-par 68 at Torrey Pines, to grab a one-third share of the midway lead in the $170,000 San Diego Open.

A native of this area until he bought a farm in Utah last year, Casper is tied with a man whose dream is to purchase a farm in New Zealand. He is John Lister, who has been struggling on the U.S. tour for seven years.

The 27-year-old Lister played the same course as Casper, the easier 6,667-yard North, and fired a 69. Both men stand at 7-under-par 137.

A THIRD man at that figure is Rod Funseth, the second most famous golfer from Napa. He had the day's best round, a 67 on the North course, as 50-degree weather kept the golfers from taking apart par.

That other Napa golfer, Johnny Miller, couldn't ward off the effects of a head cold and struggled to his second consecutive 73. It took 146 to make the cut and Johnny says he may have to withdraw today if the doctor decides he needs a rest.

Charming as ever despite "feeling lousy," Miller said he was happy to see Casper and Funseth on top since one is a Mormon and the other is his Napa neighbor.

Miller did not use ill health to explain his poor rounds.

"I'm really putting it sensational, but nothing has fallen in. I've lipped 10 or 12 putts this week. But if I tell my fellow pros this I don't think they would have too much sympathy for me."

MILLER picks Casper to win the tournament, primarily because the greens are slow here and Johnny rates Casper the greatest putter of all time on "grainy greens."

If Casper does win, it may be due to his excellence with the driver. He is driving it more solid than he has in 2½ years and he says this is because he has been practicing with a weighted club.

"I spend five minutes a night using it," says Billy. "It weighs five pounds and it makes my driver feel awfully light. I've been striking the ball well for a couple of weeks and my tempo is almost perfect."

The club is one put out by Jerry Barber but Casper would not confirm this.

"No commercials, please," he laughed.

Casper was paired with long-ball hitting Tom Weiskopf and several times, "drove it by him. Tom got a little excited when he saw an old man like me do this."

It's been nearly 17 months since Casper captured a tournament but he feels he can still win if he continues to strike the ball in the manner he has recently. No one doubts that Billy is one of the tour's great putters.

HE HOLED 25 and 35-footers for birdies on the seventh and eighth holes to make the turn in 34. He cruised along in par until the 503-yard 14th where he pitched in for an eagle 3. Still on the plump side, Billy danced a little jig when the ball dropped.

"I'm not too old to get excited about shots like that," said Casper, whose wife is expecting their 10th child in May. Six are adopted.

Lister, playing with no gallery, made six birdies and three bogies, sinking only one putt over three feet. He was not pleased with two three-putt greens.

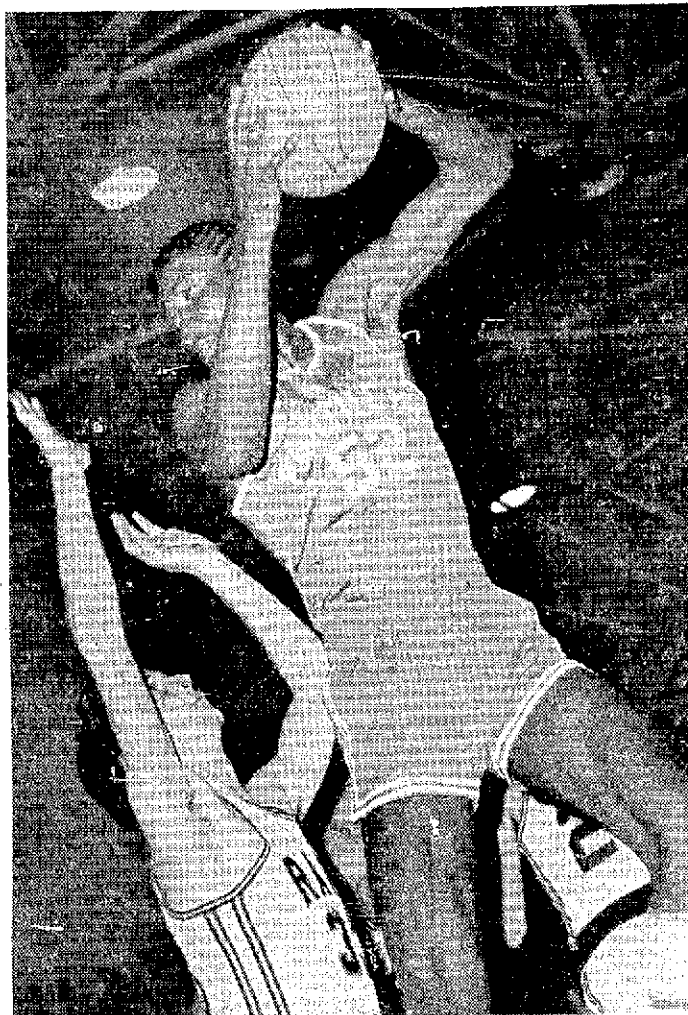

"I've squandered a lot of shots in two days," he said. "I very easily could be 10 or 11 under. But it's been a long time since I hit the driver as well as this, so I'm not too disappointed."

Lister has never finished better than 180th in money winnings in his seven years on the tour. He usually wins two or three tournaments in New Zealand because "over there I have only two or three guys to beat."

As for the farm he hopes to purchase one day, he says, "the way I've been playing it's a long way off."

FUNSETH won the 1973 Los Angeles Open, then went into a tailspin and Jordan's James Hardy towers above Millikan's Brian Wicker Friday night as he snares rebound in Moore League game. Most of Hardy's exploits came on offense, however, as he established league record with 50-point performance in Panthers' 78-52 win.

HARDY HITS RECORD 50

Perhaps records are made to be broken, but that quickly?

Jordan High's James Hardy, starting his first game in six weeks, broke the Moore League single-game scoring record, set only two days earlier, with a 50-point outburst as the Panthers rolled to a 78-52 victory over Millikan.

Hardy shot 76 per cent from the field (23-30) and Jordan controlled the game from the outset, jumping to a 12-2 lead. The Panthers led 37-32 at the half and scored the first basket of the third quarter before Millikan began a brief rally.

The Rams closed the gap to 48-44, but Hardy, who scored all of Jordan's 15 points in the period, righted the ship and Jordan led 52-44 entering the final quarter.

Hardy tied the record with 2:30 remaining and 30 seconds later broke it on a short jumper. Although he had not started a game since the opening Moore contest because of a foot injury, Hardy played all but the final 45 seconds.

Jordan enjoyed an excellent shooting night, connecting on 32 of 57 field goal attempts (56 per cent), but only 14 of 21 from the free throw stripe (66 per cent).

Brian Wicker enabled Millikan to stay close for most of the night as he pumped in 22 points. Wicker was 7 for 13 from the field and perfect from the free throw line (8-8).

Craig Seymour had seemingly locked up the game for Servite at the 20-second mark, sinking two free throws for a 50-46 lead.

Servite took a time out after Carney's free throws, but it was nearly five minutes before the Friars were able to inbound the ball.

There was no scoring in the final 2:50 of regulation after Dennis Smith of the Friars tipped in a basket.

The Saints, working for a last shot, managed to keep possession until Esposito was called for a three-second lane violation at 0:04.

Joe Hovorka's inbound pass for Servite hit the rim and rebounded to Andy Murphy, whose shot at the buzzer missed.

Lenzen sparks 91-78 LBCC win

Long Beach City College unloaded a secret weapon against Valley College Friday night.

Reserve freshman Brian Lenzen came off the bench and connected on 11 of 15 field goals for 22 points and helped the Vikings to a 91-78 win over the Monarchs before a sparse crowd in the losers' gym.

"Sure, he's our secret weapon," kidded sophomore forward Steve Sincok. "Tell 'em, Brian."

Laker win may prove costly; Winters hurt

Cazzie Russell, who replaced Winters, and guard Lucius Allen, provided the key baskets Friday night as the Lakers ended a three-game losing streak with a 108-100 win over Atlanta at the Forum.

The Lakers led by 11 points with 9½ minutes remaining, then trailed off as they have done so many times before down the stretch. Led by rookie John Drew, the Hawks cut the deficit to 100-98 with 3:44 to go.

But Atlanta didn't score again until the final 18 seconds and the Lakers, displaying rare poise and patience, rattled off eight consecutive points.

Allen, who finished with 24 points, netted the first two baskets on jump shots. Gail Goodrich got the next, then Zelmo Beaty hit two free throws. Beaty filled in for center

Elmore Smith, who has the flu.

Russell carried the Lakers until the waning minutes, scoring a season-high 27 points. He netted 12 in the third stanza and five quick points in the fourth when the Lakers opened up what appeared to be a safe 92-81 lead.

Drew brought the Hawks back, however. He scored 10 of his 31 points in the fourth period and his two jump shots, plus another basket by Herm
